Dr. Emerson on Witness Stand In Census Probe

Given Most Vigorous Questioning of Probe by Commissioner Le Boeuf—He and Dr. Laidlaw Were Responsible for Language of Report.

Albany, Oct. 21 (AP).—Dr. Haven Emerson, who, with Dr. Walter Laidlaw, was responsible for the language of the report of the Cities Census Committee, Inc., which precipitated the Moreland Act investigation of the 1925 New York state census administration, was given the most vigorous questioning of the investigation by the commissioner, Randall J. Le Boeuf, Jr., today.

When luncheon recess was taken Commissioner Le Boeuf had gained this information from Dr. Emerson:

That he and Dr. Laidlaw were solely responsible for the language of the Cities Census Committee report.

That the board of directors of the Cities Census Committee are the representatives of large organizations which would profit by the information that the committee wanted to get from the state.

That Dr. Laidlaw was his "eyes and ears" and that he accepted, without any check, the accuracy of Laidlaw's statements.

Accurate and Thorough.

He said he believed the enumeration itself was accurately and thoroughly done and was far superior to that of any previous state census, and that the individual enumerations "possessed an accuracy, legibility and completeness unknown in any prior state census, and altogether creditable".

Dr. Emerson, who is professor of public health at Columbia University and formerly was commissioner of health of New York city, said that he had been familiar with at least a dozen census enumerations. The Cities Census Committee, Inc., he told Commissioner Le Boeuf was largely supported by the funds contributed by such foundations as Russell Sage, Laura Spellman Rockefeller, Millbank, Nathan Hofheimer, and New York.

He described the efforts to get a supplemental appropriation to complete the work. Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, the secretary of state who had charge of the census enumeration, originally wanted a supplemental of $300,000, he said, but this amount the committee believed was too large. A bill was introduced in the Legislature calling for an additional appropriation of $200,000 and this amount was later reduced to $150,000, as recommended by the committee.

Directors Didn't Read Report.

Probably no members of the board of directors of the cities Census Committee had ever read either the preliminary or completed report, on which the present proceeding is based, he said, except Dr. Laidlaw and himself.

In reply to Commissioner Le Boeuf's questions as to whether the board of directors authorized publication of "allegations and charges of this sort" he said that the board of directors had authorized the completion and filing of its report after they had been given all the essential preliminary details, but that full responsibility for the actual language rested entirely with Dr. Laidlaw and himself.

Dr. Emerson said he might have seen a few of the original checks on which some of the charges against Mrs. Knapp are based, but he had never seen any other original documents, such as payrolls or work records.

LEAVES TROOPERS FOR RAILROAD POLICE.

Harry Martin, who was stationed for eleven months at East Kingston, where he has made many friends, has resigned his position as a State Trooper and has been appointed a member of the New York Central Lines police. He will be stationed at the West Shoe station. William F. Tierney, who was stationed at the Union station here, has been promoted to a sargency of the force and transferred to Weehawken.

Ambulance Calls Here.

Thursday the city ambulance removed Mrs. Elizabeth Davis from 59 Clinton avenue to Kingston City Hospital; Mrs. Hattie Spellman, who sustained a broken hip in a fall was removed from the Kingston City Hospital to her home, 58 Brewster street, and Mrs. Emma Warren was removed from the Benedictine Hospital to the City Home.

Return to Florida for Winter.

The Lakeland (Florida) Evening Ledger says: Mrs. Sam Paradee and son, who spent last winter in Lakeland, have returned for the present season after spending the summer at Port Ewen, N. Y. Mrs. Paradee is located at 324 West Hunter, but considers building her own home here this winter.

Gives Up Channel Swim.

London, Oct. 21 (AP).—Mercedes Gleitz, London typist, who started on a channel swim from Cape Gris-Nez, France, early this morning to vindicate the honor her previous swim, gave up her attempt eight miles from Dover, says a dispatch to the Evening News this afternoon.

Seek to Disprove Fall Motive for Drainage Danger

Government Endeavors to Refute Contention of Defense That Fall Leased Teapot Dome Because of Danger of Drainage By Adjacent Wells.

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP).—Through geologists, the government's counsel endeavored today in District of Columbia supreme court to disprove the contention of the defense that the compelling motive of Albert B. Fall in leasing Teapot Dome to Harry F. Sinclair was the danger of drainage by adjacent oil wells.

George Otis Smith, director of the geological survey, testified that in the latter part of October, 1921, six months before the lease was executed by the former secretary of interior, he sent a competent geologist to Teapot Dome who reported that the situation as to possible drainage had been unchanged since the date of the executive order establishing the Wyoming naval oil reserve.

At the outset of the criminal conspiracy trial today the defense placed before the jury correspondence between Fall and the late Senator Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin, concerning the naval reserves.

Letter Gave First Intimation.

Fall's letter was dated April 12, 1922, three days after the lease was signed, and it gave the first information that Teapot Dome had passed from government possession. He spoke of what he thought was the danger of drainage and added that "it is not the purpose to sell but simply to preserve oil above the ground if it cannot be preserved under the ground."

The then secretary said also that military purposes were involved in the lease and that details could not be made public without the authority of the President, but he enclosed a memorandum giving the high spots in the lease signed by Sinclair.

After receipt of this letter Senator LaFollette set in motion machinery of the Senate, the operation of which resulted in the sensational investigation of 1923-24.

Sent Geologist to Investigate.

Smith told the court that he sent a geologist, K. C. Heald, to Teapot Dome at the suggestion of Fall to investigate reported danger of drainage.

"Heald told Secretary Fall in my presence", said Dr. Smith, "that there was no imminent danger of drainage in Teapot Dome. I do not remember that I did more at that time than to vouch for Heald.

"Three days later I went to Fall's office with a written transcript of Heald's oral statement, which I gave the secretary. After that I was not consulted by Fall about Teapot Dome at any time."

PUBLIC INTOXICATION AND RECKLESS DRIVING

Hornsby Dawson, a negro, was arrested at 3 o'clock this morning on lower Hasbrouck avenue by Officer Saehloff who charged the negro with public intoxication. In police court Dawson was fined $5 by Judge Shufeldt.

Clayce R. DeForrest of Clarksburg, W. Va., was arrested Thursday night by Daniel Healey on Broadway at the intersection of Railroad avenue. Mr. Healey charged Mr. DeForrest with reckless driving. The hearing was adjourned to Saturday morning in police court.

SKUNK'S HEAD CAUGHT FAST IN EMPTY GLASS

Thursday afternoon the police department received a telephone call from Washington avenue that a skunk was running around in the vicinity of No. 132 Washington avenue with its head caught fast in an empty fruit jar. Officer Burger, who had hunted skunks long before he became a valued member of the police department, was sent to the scene and shot the animal. This fall there appears to have been an invasion by skunks from all sections of the city.

Stolen Automobile Causes Lawsuit

Marlborough Farmer Bought Car Which State Troopers Took Away Because It Was Stolen—Other Cases in Supreme Court.

The complaint and counterclaim in an action for divorce brought by Edgar M. Marshall against Mary Grace Marshall were dismissed in the Supreme court today. The complaint was dismissed with costs to defendant on motion of plaintiff's attorney, Earle H. Houghtaling. Judge William D. Cunningham appeared for d efendant who entered a counterclaim.

An action brought by the West Shore Theatres, Inc., against the Department of Labor of the State of New York et al. to remove violations, etc., under provisions of the Labor Law and rules and orders of state building code, was discontinued without costs. The action grew out of certain demands for wider aisles and other changes in the erection of the Orpheum Theatre in this city. Since the action was commenced the changes have been made and the law complied with. Frank W. Brooks appeared for the plaintiff and the state department was represented by a deputy attorney general.

Action Involves Fraud.

An action was taken up, for trial involving the element of fraud. Joseph F. Swartz of Marlborough brought suit against Charles Weed of Marlborough and Thomas J. Kelly whose residence is unknown, to recover $600 alleged to have been paid by plaintiff for a Buick car which later turned out to be a stolen car. Before the case was opened Mr. Brooks, who appeared for plaintiff, elected to dismiss the complaint as against Kelley as it had been impossible to locate him or serve him.

It appears from the testimony that in November, 1924, Mr. Weed sold plaintiff a Buick sedan for $600. In May, 1925, the insurance underwriters' man, Charles Horn, and Sergeant Lockhart of the State Troopers called on Mr. Swartz and informed him that the car was a stolen one and also that the number had been changed on the motor. Mr. Swartz then sought to recover his $600 but failed and an action was commenced.

Bill of Sale Produced.

Swartz claims that Weed called on him and represented the machine to be his and said it was a 1923 model. He offered to sell it for $750. Later Swartz bought it and paid $600. He gave a check and then asked for a bill of sale. Weed produced a bill of sale signed by Thomas J. Kelly and at that time the plaintiff asked Weed if Kelly was in on the deal and he said he was. Prior to that Weed had told him he was selling the car for the Buick people in Brooklyn. Swartz said he never knew Kelly was involved in the deal until the bill of sale was produced signed by Kelly. Later Swartz found the car to be a 1924 car and also learned the number had been changed. He asked for his money or offered to take a note signed by Weed and his mother or father. On one occasion Weed and Swartz went to a lawyer to have the note drawn but on arrival Weed refused to sign a note.

Swartz, who is a farmer, said he relied on the representations of Weed and bought the car under the impression it was the property of Weed. Later when he found Kelly was involved and he did not get a license transfer, he still failed to suspect he had been deceived but when the insurance man and State Troopers took his car away he learned the car was stolen property. The owner was later located.

Plaintiff denied that Weed had told him that Kelly had brought the car to Weed to b sold to Weed's father. He said he never had the name Kelly mentioned to him until the bill of sale was produced after he had taken possession of the car and had it a time.

Says He Acted as Agent.

The defendant claims the car was not Weed's and that he did not so represent it. He claims he was acting as agent for Kelly and that he sold it for Kelly and that Kelly has the money and is the man to be sought. It is the contention of the defendant that Swartz knew that Weed was acting as agent for Kelly at the time he purchased the car.

Frank W. Brooks appears for plaintiff and A. W. Lent for the defendant.

Men of St. John's Church Dine and Hear Good Talks

Bishop Manning and Other Notable Clergymen, Including Former Rectors, Guests at Dinner In New Parish House Thursday Night—Excellent Addresses Enjoyed.

St. John's parish house on Albany avenue was the scene on Thursday evening of a very happy and prophetic gathering of some eighty-odd men, including the following out of town clergy:

The Rt. Rev. William Manning, D. D., D. C. L., Bishop of New York; Rev. Charles B. Ackerly, D. D., New York city; Rev. John Marshall Chew, Newburgh; Rev. Eli D. Sutcliffe, Poughkeepsie; Rev. Leighton Williams, D.D., Marlborough; Rev. S. Halsted Watkins, New York city; Rev. Emery L. Howe, Saugerties; Rev. David S. Agnew, High Falls and Ellenville; Rev. Octavius Applegate, D. D., Warwick, N. Y.; Rev. Gregory Mabry, Kingston, N. Y.; Rev. Charles Bratten Dubell, Philadelphia; Rev. J. G. Cameron, Rosendale; Rev. Frederic L. Bradley, New Paltz; Rev. Frederick B. Hornby, West Park.

The spacious assembly room of the parish house presented a charming picture with its flower-decked, candle-lighted tables, as the men assembled and stood during the singing of "Our Fathers' God, To Thee," and the offering of thanks by Bishop Manning. There was considerable hearty singing throughout the evening, Raymond and Rodney DuBois presiding at the piano.

The following excellent menu was served by Mr. Daly:

Clear Soup	Saltines
Chicken pate
Potato croquettes	Succotash
Hot Rolls	Jelly
Salad
Ice Cream	Cakes
Coffee
Cigars	Cigarettes

Dinner served by the ladies of St. John's, "God Bless 'em."

The Rev. William Poyntell Kemper, rector of the church, was the gracious and felicitous toastmaster and voiced his extreme happiness over the auspicious, and historic gathering of men present. Bishop Manning, but just returned from overseas, and the guest clergy. Speaking a few forceful words to the men of the parish, Mr. Kemper assured them that if they would adopt the motto "St. John's can do it if you will do it," the future service for good of that church in Kingston could be unlimited.

Dr. Applegate Welcomed.

Mr. Kemper then called upon a former and greatly loved rector of St. John's Church, the Rev. Dr. Octavius Applegate, who was given a very hearty welcome although not known to many of the younger men of the parish of today. Expressing his joy at being back in Kingston at St. John's Church, now new, Dr. Applegate expressed appreciation of the spirit of loyalty which he had always found in the parish and complimented the rector, vestry and congregation upon the new church so admirably commingling the old church and the new. With its new church and new rector whom the speaker counted a splendid Christian leader, Dr. Applegate prophesied widened usefulness for the church.

Congratulations for Parish.

The next speaker was the Rev. Charles B. Ackley, D. D., of New York city, a classmate and close friend of both the new rector and the late Rev. Edward M. H. Knapp, rector of the church when the project of transplanting the church was conceived and carried into effect. Dr. Ackley quite surprised the men by referring to the part that St. John's Church had played during the incumbency of the Rev. Mr. Larned, when almost famine conditions were prevailing in mining centers and large cities. St. John's people took several children for the winter months, giving them the care they could not have otherwise received, and most of those children came from Dr. Ackley's church, St. Bartholemew's parish, New York city. After reiterating his gratitude, Dr. Ackley paid a glowing tribute to the Rev. Mr. Knapp, whom he felt sure would deeply rejoice with them all in the consummated hopes and plans and the ambitions of the new St. John's. He also very warmly congratulated the parish on their acquisition of William Poyntell Kemper—his friend for three generations, so to speak—as their rector. Dr. Ackley stated that Mr. Kemper's grandfather, Bishop Kemper, known as "The Bishop of All Out Doors", meaning several western states, and his own grandfather had been friends; their parents were friends and he and Poyntell Kemper had been and still were the best of friends.

Points Out Duty of Laymen.

The laymen were then represented by the senior warden of the church, Thomas Attwood Horton, who gave

Cohen Wins Suit For Selling Store

Morris Cohen of New York Awarded Verdict of $250 Claimed To Be Due For His Services In Sale of E. S. Craft & Son Grocery.

An action on contract brought by Morris Cohen of New York against Louis Ludwig of this city was taken up for trial in the Supreme court Thursday, and this morning the jury brought in a verdict of $250 in favor of the plaintiff.

The action grew out of the sale of the E. S. Craft & Son grocery store on Wall-street in the spring of 1926. Morris Cohen, who conducts a real estate business in New York, seeks to recover a portion of the commission which Mr. Ludwig received for the sale of the Craft business.

Cohen and his foster son, Sol Cohen, testified that they had introduced Mr. Ludwig and William Cohen and that following that introduction Mr. Shapiro and Mr. Cohen and Mr. Kahn bought the Craft store here.

Morris Cohen testified that he and Ludwig had done business before and had split commissions. He, Cohen, would get a customer and send him out to the country and Ludwig would take him around and show him properties and if a sale was made the commission was split. He testified that sometime in the fall of 1925 Ludwig came to his office in New York and there he introduced Mr. Cohen who at that time was looking for a business in the country.

Craft Property Recommended.

Shortly after that he and Ludwig had several conversations in which it was urged that Morris Cohen send William Cohen to Kingston to look over the Craft property. Morris Cohen said Ludwig told William Cohen he had a store in Kingston which was taking in a half million dollars a year and that this interested William Cohen who said he would have to get a partner to help handle the transaction. Morris Cohen said later he did get William Cohen and Mr. Shapiro to come to Kingston and he sent a telegram to Ludwig telling what train they were taking and asking Ludwig to meet the ferry. He alleges it was through his efforts that Ludwig was able to sell Cohen, Shapiro and Kahn the business. Cohen said he heard the price was $30,000.

Various conversations by 'phone were verified by Sol Cohen, who is engaged in business with his father during the day and attends the University of the City of New York at night.

Craft Uncertain of Price.

Eugene S. Craft testified he had paid Ludwig $500 commission on the sale. He was not positive but thought that was all he had paid. He was not sure what had been paid for the business, stating he could look up his contract and find out. He thought it was somewhere around $18,000.

William Cohen was called testified he had known Ludwig for some time before he met him at Morris Cohen's office. He said he had been surprised to see Ludwig there that day but said nothing about it except to smile and shake hands. He did not make it known at that time to Morris Cohen that he had previously met Ludwig. He said a year or more before he had bought a place at Shokan through Ludwig and he had traveled over the country considerably in 1924 with Ludwig looking for a business before he bought the Shokan property. He had not seen Ludwig, however, since he bought the property. It was about a week or more later that he next saw Ludwig and within a short time he came to Kingston and looked over the Craft store. He said he did not talk business in Cohen's office the day he met Ludwig and was introduced to Ludwig, whom he already knew. Ludwig later interested him in the Craft store.

He said he had no interest in the outcome of the lawsuit. He also testified he had looked over certain other stores in Kingston with the idea of purchase. He said he had been shown places by Morris Cohen or through his agents but had not been satisfied. He looked at a property on North Front street.

Ludwig Makes Denial.

Mr. Ludwig testified he had no conversation with William Cohen the day they met at Morris Cohen's office. He said he knew William Cohen before he met him in November, 1925. He denied that Morris Cohen ever secured the customer who purchased the Craft store or that there had ever been an agreement to split any commission on the Craft sale. He denied there had been any conversation about getting Cohen and Shapiro to come to Kingston or that Morris Cohen ever called him on the telephone or sent a telegram asking him to meet a train and show the property to Cohen and Shapiro. He denied that Morris Cohen and his son, Sol, had anything to do with the transaction.

He denied they had introduced him to the purchasers or had performed any service which would entitle them to any portion of the commission which he had received.

Judge William D. Cunningham appeared for the plaintiff and Frank W. Brooks for the defendant.

New St. John's Church Dedicated By Bishop

Impressive Ceremony at Dedication of New Edifice by Bishop Manning, Followed by Institution of Rev. William Poyntell Kemper as Rector—Bishop Manning Pays Tribute to Rev. Edward M. H. Knapp.

This morning at 10:30 o'clock the new St. John's Episcopal Church on Albany avenue at the head of Tremper avenue, was filled to the doors with a congregation in attendance upon the service of Consecration of the Church, institution of the Rev. William Poyntell Kemper, M. A., as rector of the church, and the celebration of the Holy Communion. The beauty of the new church in its equally beautiful setting was noted by all, and the enlarged chancel made it possible for the following attending clergy to take part in the service:

An Impressive Ceremony.

The solemnization of one of the most impressive religious services ever held in Kingston began with a processional from the parish house to the outer door of the church, the clergy in their vestments and the full vested choir presenting a beautiful picture with the October sunshine lighting upon them through the autumnal foliage of the trees surrounding the church.

Led by the crucifer, after whom came the choir, then the clergy and the Bishop, all singing "The Church's One Foundation," the processional stopped at the entrance to the church where the Bishop was received by the church wardens and vestrymen. Then the processional, now including the wardens and vestrymen, proceeded up the aisle of the church to the communion table, repeating the twenty-fourth Psalm alternately, the Bishop one verse, the clergy another.

The Consecration.

The Bishop passing within the rail and occupying the bishop's chair, then received the instruments of Donation and Endowment, from the hand of the Senior Warden, Thomas Atwood Horton, and the Consecration service continued. Finally the Sentence of Consecration having been read by the Rev. S. Halstead Watkins, appointed by the bishop so to do, and the same being laid by the bishop upon the Communion table, the bishop said: "Blessed be thy name, O Lord, that it hath pleased Thee to put it into the hearts of thy servants to appropriate and devote this house to thy honor and worship; and grant that all who shall enjoy the benefits of this pious work, may show forth their thankfulness, by making a right use of it, to the glory of thy blessed name; through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen."

Institution of New Rector.

Beginning the Communion service, with the Rev. Dr. Octavius Applegate, D.D. as epistolar and the Rev. Charles Breck Ackerly, D. D. as gospeler, the reciting of the Nicene Creed was followed by the Office of Institution.

Presented by the Rev. John Marshall Chew, D. D., the Rev. William Poyntell Kemper, M. A. was received by the bishop within the altar railing.

The keys of the church were presented by the senior warden, Thomas Atwood Horton, to the Rev. Mr. Kemper who received the same and the Office of Institution proceeded to its conclusion after which the hymn, "O God, our help in ages past," was sung by all present.

Bishop Manning's Sermon.

The sermon was preached by the Right Reverend William Thomas Manning, D. D. D. C. L. bishop of the diocese, who said in part:

"O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness, let the whole earth stand in awe of Him."

This is for all of us a day of happiness, of encouragement and of thanksgiving. We are here to consecrate this beautiful church building on its new site to the honor of Almighty God and for the help and blessing of the people of this parish, and of all whom its ministry can reach.

This service speaks to us of the hope and opportunity of the future, and it speaks to us also of those in the past whose faith in God and loyalty to His Church have entered into the life of this parish and helped to make it the power for good that it is today.

It speaks of all those whose true and faithful lives have given honor to God and help to their fellow men, and how many such lives there have been in this historic city of Kingston, and in this region, lives, many of them of which little was heard but who did their part, whose influence is felt here among us today, and whose names are written in the Book of Life.

Pays Tribute to Mr. Knapp.

And especially, the Consecration of this church brings to our minds the life and ministry here among you of the Rev. Edward M. H. Knapp to whose vision and faithfulness, with the support of your vestry, the forming of these plans and the erection of this church is so largely due. Let us remember him today in our prayers before this altar and give thanks to God for his true and faithful service in the church and in this parish. I rejoice that all of you together as a congregation have erected this beautiful memorial pulpit to speak to you daily of his life and work among you.

This noble church in its new and admirably chosen situation gives greatly enlarged opportunity to St. John's Church and I am sure that under the guidance of your rector you will put this opportunity to good use.

I congratulate your rector and vestry and all of you and rejoice with you with all my heart.

What The Church Means.

The church building stands as a witness to the power of Jesus Christ in the lives of men and to your faith in Him not only as He was in the flesh 2,000 years ago but as He is at this moment on the Throne of God where we lift up our prayers and praises to Him.

That is what all our prayers and worship and sacraments mean. They mean that we believe in Jesus Christ as God, that we pray to Him, worship Him, strive to follow Him, trust Him as our Divine Lord and Guide for this life and the life to come. May no word ever be spoken from this pulpit which shall dull or weaken the faith of men in Christ, but may His Gospel be preached here in all its divine and life giving power.

The Service of Institution.

And it is most fitting that at this service for the Consecration of your church your rector should also be formally instituted into his sacred office. The Service of Institution is a most significant one. It is a holy and beautiful ideal of the priest's office which the prayer book gives us. It proclaims that your rector stands here among you as the minister and representative of Jesus Christ, the preacher of Christ's Sacraments, the Shepherd of Christ's flock.

What a blessed thing it is for any parish, and for any community where the rector is one who keeps this ideal ever before him and strives earnestly to be true to it.

And that is your happy case in this parish. Your rector has already won your confidence, and your love, because you have found in him one who desires with all his heart to serve you in Christ's Name and to lead you in the way of Christ.

Help Rector in His Work.

Do your true personal part to help him. Remember that your personal witness for Christ, "your personal presence in public worship is more vital and essential than any work you can do or any money you can give."

Help your rector to make this parish more than ever a power for Christ in this community. Here from generation to generation may men and women find the True and Living Bread to strengthen them on their way.

Here may your children be taught such real faith in Christ, such real love for Him and for His Church as shall guide and uphold them all through their lives to the end.

Here at this altar may men, women and children find the Divine Presence, the Divine Love, the Divine Help offered to us, and to all men, in Christ our Lord, the Divine, Eternal Son of God.

May His Blessing, His Presence, and His Guidance be with you now and always.

The anthem for the morning was Psalm 150, by Tertius Noble, sung by the choir, after which the Communion service participated in by the clergy, and communicants of the church brought the service to a close, the recessional hymn being "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Church Officers and Choir.

The following are the officers, choir and committees of the church:

Vestry—Thomas A. Horton, Senior Warden; Harold F. King, Junior Warden; Charles V. A. Decker, E. Hoyt Green, Treasurer; Walter S. Babcock, Clerk; George Newton Wood, Henry J. Wood, Charles A. Lasher, Charles H. De La Vergne, Jr., John D. Schoonmaker, Jr., Beulah Smith, Assistant to Treasurer.

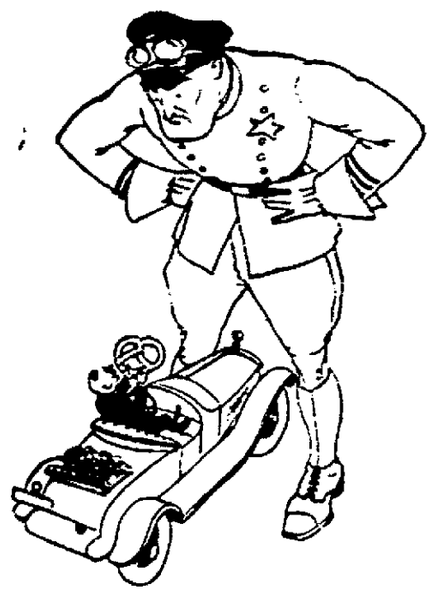
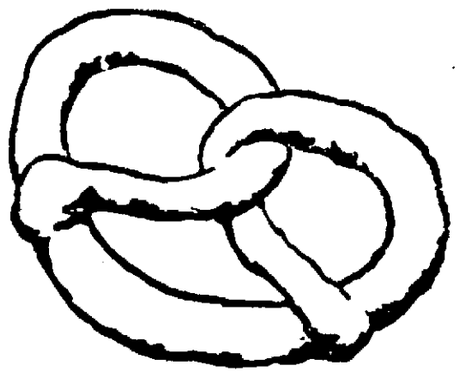
Bite yourself an Alphabet





Here's a tip for pretzeleers on wheels

Suppose you go fast, and the naughty policeman stops you and gives you a lot of jaw. Can you jaw back? You can, but don't. While the speed cop uses his jaws to talk, you use yours to pretzelize. Bite out these five letters for him:

SORRY

Chances are he will let you eat your word and depart in peace.

Of course you'll want O-So-Gud Pretzels baked by Uneeda Bakers. This is the kind that all good pretzeleers use for eating and for pretzeleering.

They're brown. They're crisp. They're crunchy. They're salty. Easy to digest. Good for grand children and grand parents.

Eat them with soup, with salad, with cheese, with sweet desserts. Serve them with cool iced drinks. Eat them between meals. Eat them without any excuse at all—except that you want to.

Ask for pretzels made by Uneeda Bakers. You will like them better.

Mrs. Van Wagner, who has been a visitor of Granville Ackert and family for a month, has returned home.

Mrs. Hazzie Trowbridge and daughter, Alberta Elma, spent from Wednesday until Sunday past with her mother.

Elmer Christiana is installing a new furnace in his bungalow for this winter.

Hazzie Trowbridge and Don Gillespie of Stone Ridge were callers in Ashokan Sunday, spending a few hours with Mr. Trowbridge's wife and little daughter, who were visiting her mother there. Mr. Gillespie was demonstrating a new Star Six to the Trowbridge family.

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Trowbridge were callers in Tongore Sunday.

H. Trowbridge is very busy doing his fall threshing.

O. M. Beck is improving Mr. and Mrs. H. Trowbridge's living room by adding two more windows.

The Sunday school gave a party to the children who so faithfully took part in the Children's Day exercises in June.

Arnold Fedda is in poor health at present. His many friends hope he will gain in health soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Hazzie Trowbridge and daughter, Alberta Elma, also her mother, Mrs. Thomas Sahlbeck, were visitors in Kingston Thursday past.

The city people who have summer homes here have left for the winter. All hope to see them back another season.

Every Baby Needs Vitamins

Baby often requires special vitamin-nourishment to assure development of sound bones and avoidance of rickets.

Science has rightly given emulsified cod-liver oil, as in Scott's Emulsion, a place of premier importance as a help to perfect baby's nutrition and to furnish its growing organism with a needed abundance of rickets-preventing and growth-promoting vitamins.

Young children who are not absorbing a full abundance of essential vitamins, should receive, as an added food-ration, regular doses of easily-assimilated, pleasantly-flavored, emulsified cod-liver oil in the form of

for Economical Transportation.

Suggestions- for giving the old place new luster,

Put a man in the finest suit of clothes money can buy. If his trousers aren't pressed, his hair combed, and the suit brushed up, he doesn't look the part. It's the same way with the house or farm.

Here are some suggestions. You cannot do everything at once. The trick is to take one thing at a time and do that right. Then go on to the next, and so on down the list. Check the suggestions below. Then come and see us. We have the necessary materials and we can give you some practical suggestions about how to do it.

KINGSTON, N. Y., OCT. 21, 1927.

In lamenting "American hatred of Great Britain" the Bishop of London failed to mention the equally lamentable "British hatred of America," of which there have been some few indications.

While the people of all countries think they have reason to grumble about taxes, only the people of Vienna know they have reason to howl. There a man must pay a tax of $232 a year on a Ford car, and one must be rich to afford more than one servant, the tax on a second being $7 and $35 for each additional servant.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran, in new instructions for dry enforcement agents sent out from Washington, rules that there must be no more raids on cabarets and night clubs of the old spectacular sort; they must no longer rush dramatically into such places brandishing their drawn revolvers, as this may cause the raided to shoot (as they suppose) in self-defense, with the result of more deaths on both sides than necessary. To this good sense it might well have been added that "spectacular" methods excite the agents themselves, doubtless in no few cases causing them to fire needlessly merely for the sake of dramatic climax. As for drinking by agents, of which there has been much report, this, the order rather mysteriously declares, "should be done only in the line of duty."

RUBBERIZED TRAFFIC.

Chicago has installed rubber "stop" signs, and they are said to be a success. The signs are in the form of rubber blocks six inches high, which spring back into place when run over. Their advantages are obvious. When a motorist ignores them, neither the sign nor the car is wrecked.

Some motorists, however, want to go further. In a communication sent to the traffic commissioner, they say:

"The crying need is for rubber pedestrians that will bob right up again after being knocked down and run over, and not pedestrians with hard cores or knobby framework to injure our tires, fenders and bumpers. That would save us motorists a lot of time and nervous strain."

But why make the thing so one-sided? It is indeed a rubber age. And if traffic is to be rubberized, why not make a complete job of it and rubberize the cars, too? Why not, along with rubber tires, adopt rubber bumpers, fenders and bodies? In fact, it might be possible to make the whole car of rubber, except some parts of the engine, after the manner of the rubber rafts, lifeboats and tenders now coming into use. Then collisions would be harmless.

THE "DEATH" SEASON.

Under the heading, "In Memoriam," in a Boston newspaper, appears this announcement: "The Commonwealth of Massachusetts mourns the passing of the following citizens who, during the week ending October 7, 1927, lost their lives in automobile accidents." Following the names of the eighteen victims comes the warning and admonition: October, the "Death Month." As the days grow shorter, the list grows longer. Remember: "Less hurry—less killed."

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles, who caused the above to be printed, states in another column that in the same first week of the "death month" no less than 150 persons were convicted for driving cars while intoxicated. Nineteen of the offenders were sent to jail and as many as 735 drivers lost their licenses, 352 more than in the same period a year ago. This is impressive comment not only of the increasing danger from motor-cars, particularly in the season of short daylight, but on the ineffectiveness of prohibition enforcement. In New York the names of drivers deprived of their licenses for intoxication are published. The same policy in other States, even if not aiding enforcement, should at least tend to prevent intoxication while driving cars.

THE SIGN ON THE DOOR.

The housewife who lived on a convenient corner, and one where because of a curve in the road there was an easy place to park, found herself home on each time answering the doorbell that she grew desperate.

If she took but two minutes apiece to tell the itinerant vendors of magazines, aprons, encyclopedias, shoestrings and weatherstrips that she was not in the market for such wares, it cut into her day badly. If she allowed every careless motorist in trouble to use her telephone, lent the pump, the wrench, the water bucket as often as called for, either she had to stay around until the work was done, or lose a good many tools and buckets.

Finally she put a small card on the door with this legend:

We give nothing at the door.
We buy nothing at the door.
Gas station, drug store and restaurant half mile east.

Her friends are apt to smile as they read it. There have been fists shaken at it. But for the most part she does her work in peace. And she has saved enough in time and extra house service in the last year to increase her donation to the community fund, so that she feels at ease about worthy cases needing help who might be turned away by the sign.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

WHY A ROOM SEEMS STUFFY.

It is surprising how some of the ideas of a number of years back still persist in the minds of legislators and others, despite the fact that they have been proven to be wrong.

One of these is that when we get into a crowded room that it is the expired air, the carbon dioxide in the expired air, that causes faintness, weakness and collapse.

You will remember that you were taught in school that fresh air contains 79 parts nitrogen and 21 parts oxygen, and expired air, that has been breathed out of the body, contains 79 parts nitrogen and only 16½ parts oxygen, the oxygen being replaced by carbon dioxide and organic particles, both of which are poisonous.

As a matter of fact our hygienists have been able to show that while the lungs make the exchange of fresh air for impure or expired air, it is really the skin, the effect of air on the skin, that determines our comfort and safety.

So instead of talking about the composition of air, that is, nitrogen, oxygen, carbon dioxide, and so forth, thought is now given to the condition of the air. What is its temperature, moisture, and whether it is still or moving.

You are comfortable when the heat manufactured by your body is carried away by means of the skin.

When the air is moist and hot, it cannot readily take up the heat from the body, and so you feel stuffy and uncomfortable. If however the air is kept in motion, as shown by Dr. Leonard Hill, then the body obtains relief, as this helps evaporation.

Our industrial hygiene experts have discovered that "human activity measured by work accomplished, is at its best at a temperature of about 65 degrees F. At this temperature there are fewest accidents and least sickness.

For those engaged in non-laborious or mental work, a temperature of about 68 degrees F. is found to be best."

United States and British scientists are working continuously on this problem of ventilation, as health, comfort and ability to do one's work, are all dependent upon proper ventilation.

In the meantime keeping the air moist in the home in winter, as cold air is usually a little too dry, and by the use of fans in summer to keep air moving, some degree of comfort can be obtained, until the time when domestic and business houses may have a cooling system for the summer, as they now have a heating system for the winter.

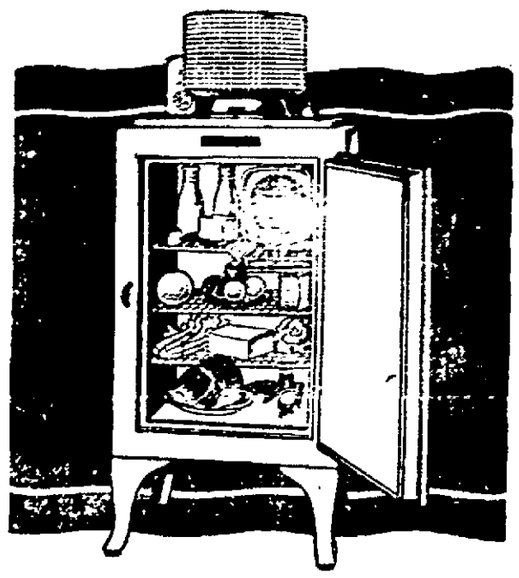
Rubber Replacing Metal

Rubber is proving a durable substitute for iron, steel and other metals in various industrial processes. One of its increasing uses is in linings for grinding mills. In a cement plant where one-inch rubber sheets were used in a mill charged with 45,000 pounds of steel balls, not even the cloth on the rubber's surface had been worn off after 90 days use, and the rubber was not worn more than one sixty-fourth of an inch after fourteen months of service, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. One explanation of this is that rubber absorbs the impact.

GENERAL ELECTRIC
Refrigerator



Install it .... and forget it

You will forget the new General Electric Refrigerator—except to bless the way it lightens household tasks. It makes two trips to market take the place of six. It keeps all foods at just the right temperature. It makes the preparation of those delightful salads and desserts a matter of minutes instead of hours. It never needs attention—not even oiling.

Come in and see it. You will notice that it is unusually quiet. That it has no pipes, belts, drains or fans to get out of order. That its shelves are unusually roomy. That it is portable. That all its moving parts are enclosed in a single hermetically sealed casing. All these advantages are the result of fifteen years of painstaking research by the General Electric Company.

HEAD CHOPPING LESS ARTISTIC

Methods of Execution in China Go Into Period of Decline.

Peking.—Living in China is a precarious job but it's no trouble whatever to be killed.

Chinese execution methods, like Chinese business, are said by many experts to have gone into a period of decline. But this generalization applies only to technique, and if one is willing to put up with a bit of bungling he can take his choice in China of a wide variety of more or less happy endings.

Decapitation is of course the best known method of execution here. In days of old the executioner with his broad heavy sword was a man of real skill and he lopped off heads with the facility of an experienced artist who took pride in his work. In these decadent times the heads fall less neatly though even faster. There seems to be no real professional headsman class, though the growth of labor unions may build one up.

Picks Nearest Soldier.

Nowadays when a few unfortunates are to be beheaded, the military commander in charge picks out the nearest husky soldier and orders him to fly at it. This the soldier does with more enthusiasm than skill, usually having to take several hacks at each neck and sometimes resorting at last to sawing. Chinese crowds enjoy this sort of thing but foreign spectators have been known to suffer from unexpected mal de mer.

Intricate Chinese beliefs make it a matter of deep disgrace and even graver consequence for a dead body to be mutilated; the family of the deceased is thereby dishonored, and the departed is supposed to lose his chances in the after life. Therefore beheading is not popular under any circumstances, but in olden days if the victim was a man of means he used to "tip" the executioner to recover the severed head at once and sew it back on the body, with as little loss of blood as possible. This is never done nowadays.

Strangling, the official execution provided in the criminal code, is considered by Chinese the most happy sort of dispatch because it leaves the body unmutilated. The emperor used to have his erring officials strangled with a silken cord, and for this reason silken cords probably always will have a somewhat sinister connotation in China. In republican days a less expensive cord is used, but just as great efficiency is attained.

Chang Tso-lin ordered strangulation in the case of the 21 Chinese caught in the recent raid on the soviet embassy. There is some reticence in disclosing details about the exact way in which this execution took place. It is understood that in similar cases the prisoner has been stood against a board in which two holes had been pierced. The cord passes through the two holes and around the neck of the condemned; by means of a stick the rope is twisted and tightened. One advantage of this idea over occidental hanging is that the victim can be half strangled, then allowed to revive.

War Lords Want Speed.

Shooting is the most modern method of execution in China today, as electrocution has not yet come into vogue, despite the possibilities now afforded by the supply of electric power in Peking and other large cities. Usually shooting is a very unceremonious affair, in which a rifle muzzle is placed close against the back of a man's head, with unpleasant consequences to the head in question. Occasionally the man is put in front of a firing squad, but Chinese marksmanship is so uniformly poor that this method cannot be resorted to if there is more than one man to be killed.

Slow slicing, broiling over fires, starving to death in cages, skinning alive, day by day gradual piercing by sharp stakes, and other unappetizing methods of execution have been pushed out of use by the hurrying rush of modern civilization in China. Experts agree that the days of esthetic execution are over. Nowadays the war lords demand speed, and in their careless insistence upon this alone they have gradually driven all artistic element out of what was once to Chinese eyes a high profession.

"Everyman" in a Barn

The Fifteenth century morality play "Everyman" was produced in a strange environment one afternoon recently. Its theater was a barn—the "tithe barn" at Great Coxwell, England, a structure reared long ago by builders who can scarcely have dreamed that it would ever be put to use such as this. In its vastness the tithe barn resembles, however, a cathedral. The dim spaciousness and hush conspired to create an appropriate atmosphere.—New York Times.

P.-T. A. Council Offers Prize

Will Give $5 to P.-T. A. Best Represented Throughout the Year—Wants School Associations to Discuss Girl Scout Movement.

The regular October meeting of the Federated Council of Parent-Teacher Associations was held in Miss Cordes's room at the high school Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Russell presiding. Schools 1, 2, 5 and 6 were represented.

The chairmen of the various committees gave reports of business assigned to them. It was voted to make a contribution to Miss Holmes for use in her work in the part-time school.

Mention was made of the presidents' luncheon to be held at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday, October 29, to which all presidents of the county P.-T. A's., and members of the Federated Council are invited. All who wish to attend are asked to notify Mrs H. P. Dederick county chairman, not later than Wednesday, October 26.

The secretary read a letter from Dr. Daniel Connelly to the president, as follows:

My dear Mrs. Russell,

May I express my appreciation of your organization, in your work of canvassing during the recent toxin-antitoxin campaign. There is no doubt but the attendance was largely due to the personal visits and interest shown by the members of the Parent-Teacher Associations.

We feel greatly indebted to the capable staff of workers, to each of whom we should like you to express our thanks and appreciation. It is only by the team work of all organizations that it was possible to reach over two thousand children. I am,

Respectfully,
DANIEL CONNELLY
Health Officer.

The Girl Scout movement came up for consideration. It is hoped that there may be a troop formed in each school in the city. The girls seem very anxious generally, just waiting for leaders. The presidents of the different P.-T.-A's. were asked to discuss the matter in their organizations, and report at the next meeting of the council.

The children of the city were given a treat Tuesday afternoon, when they were shown the picture stories of the beauty spots of America by Charles E. Buck and Mrs. Buck. These pictures were exhibited in the high school auditorium, which was filled to capacity by children of all ages and high school boys and girls as well. The evening performance was principally for adults. The council so ably assisted by the different schools and officers of the P.-T. A., netted a fine sum besides giving pleasure to many people.

Mrs. Russell then gave a report of the state convention of Parent-Teacher Associations, recently, held at Binghamton to which she was a delegate. It was replete with humor, and serious matters pertaining to the welfare of children. She was given a unanimous vote of thanks.

In order to stimulate attendance at the Council meetings, a prize of $5 was offered to the P.-T. A. best represented throughout the year, said representation to be limited to four officers and one delegate.

A good substitute for juvenile courts would be compulsory training for parents.

Monastery in Russia Place of Pilgrimage

The most strongly fortified monastery in the world is at Soloveisk, in Archangel. This monastery is inclosed on every side by a wall of granite bowlders, which measures nearly a mile in circumference. The monastery itself is very strongly fortified, being supported by round and square towers about 30 feet in height, with walls 20 feet in thickness.

The monastery in reality consists of six churches, which are the repositories of many valuable statues, and also of precious stones. Upon the walls are mounted huge guns, which in the time of the Crimean war were directed against the British White Sea squadron.

The monks who inhabited the monastery at that time marched in procession on the granite walls while the shells were flying over their heads, to indicate what little fear they had of an attack by the British fleet.

Thousands of people come annually to Soloveisk from various parts of Russia to view the churches and the relics. They are conveyed in steamers commanded and manned solely by the monks.

Too Much for Ostrich

The digestion of an ostrich is said to be about as powerful as that of a goat, yet there are some things that an ostrich cannot digest. This was proved by a recent post mortem examination of one at a zoo. The bird, it was discovered, had swallowed a can opener and this had caused its death. Among other articles found in the ostrich were two staples, a cent and a zoo attendant's hat badge.

IN THE SHADOW OF THE NOOSE

Paris' Fall Modes Are Conservative

Designers Respond to Preferences Shown for Straight Silhouette.

To the observer from overseas there is great novelty in the present-day standard of fashions in Paris, contrasting sharply with that of former years, writes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Times. Instead of the extreme, sensational, daring of the French modes which have heretofore supplied thrills for timid Americans who look to the average to follow, the scene is wholly reversed and the American eliminations are outdoing the wildest flights of Paris fancy. At the two nights on the boulevards, in restaurants and at resorts it is the French women whose skirts are cut several inches below the knee, whose decollete is the most modest and the tone of whose attire is the most subdued. This is surprising to visitors, but justifies the assertions of the couturiers that their extravagances are for the American women and that the more quiet, conservative mode expresses the taste of French women of refinement.

The waistline is still a question in which both the fashion leaders and the designers continue to take the keenest interest. The blouse and the straight silhouette in which women have had such joy and ease and which transformed the feminine figure has also revolutionized wholly the style of dress, and the most artistic efforts of the Paris creators have failed to lure their clientele from this contentment. Each season the couturiers seem to have a concerted intention to change this, to startle women into a swing back to the waistline which was considered normal in dress not so very long ago. At one exhibition after another of the collections for the autumn and winter couturiers have presented a few models in which the waistline is defined as once it was, in each case the examples have been regarded with only mild interest, almost with amusement, but the movement ends just there. The gown that is ordered is, with few exceptions, one in which the line follows gently the line of the figure, or breaks with a girdle or arrangement of drapery about the hips.

Line Still in Doubt.

In theory, the return to the normal line is always imminent and each designer is prepared to be the pioneer. Usually it is a man in the profession who expects to turn the tide, and some of these are still conspiring. Redfern thinks it is only a matter of time, since so many of his followers who have been faithful for generations have a sentiment about all things Victorian. Paul Poiret, on the other hand, is quite certain that this reversion to the past leads further back—to the Orient, in fact—and that women, being emancipated from any sort of discomfort in dress, will never again be enslaved, and will ere long take the latest line, for they are definitely longer and in most models darts, giving a flare below. These have an appeal for the woman who is looking for eccentric expression, but the greater number of women who see them are apathetic and look for the long, graceful design that gives a flattering, slenderizing effect. A few among the leading modistes are standing by their guns. Cyber, for example, presents short-waisted gowns so cleverly done that they suggest the classic Greek translated into terms of modern loveliness. The best argument in favor of these original conceptions is that they are going "like hot cakes." The bolero, softly swathing sashes and deep flounces are features in some of the most striking Cyber creations. They are their own best argument for a shorter waistline without the aid of stays. In general, it remains true that modistes are more interested in pleasing their patrons than in instituting reform.

Regarding skirts, there is no mistaking the fact that they are longer. The plain wrap-around skirt is still seen in smart, severely tailored suits, but even in this type of dress pleats are more usual, either the entire kilt, which is usual, or the skirt that is pleated in clusters and panels, as in the sports and street costumes that Jane Regny is presenting. Flaring skirts made with gores and godets, sections of the material intricately introduced, are shown by most of the houses.

In Soft Materials.

This is the year of the soft gown, a triumph for the apostles of femininity in dress, and of more attention to detail, and the Paris couturiers have presented in their collections a large number of gowns of this general type for any occasion. Soft materials are the fashion, and the models shown in gowns of crepe, georgette, poplin and satin are in many variants, but all of them answer charmingly the need of the moment. They serve through the weeks between town and country, and in the late designs will answer for many informal occasions. These gowns have an air of refinement and quality in detail which is not possible to express in the more tailored type. They are made of the supple materials which have already been found to be satisfactory—crepe-satin and a thousand variants of crepe; the voiles, from the ordinary weave to the more sheer variants of georgette and marquisette; bengaline and every variety of poplin; fine reps, chiffon and the softer grades of lame. Because designs have moved so swiftly and radical changes in the silhouette and general style of dress have gone forward so far in the last few seasons, couturiers are content for the moment with a degree of conservatism and are turning their attention to detail, and are thereby creating styles of genuine art value, of great beauty and delicacy.

Coats Shown In Paris.

Among the new coats shown in Paris Jeanne Lanvin's were interesting because of their sleeves, which spread into baggy fullness below the elbow. When used on evening coats and gowns this baggy sleeve was often slashed into strips with a foreign material inserted or merely allowed to be glimpsed. The coats themselves were cut with blind tucks flaring out at the back neck between the raglan shoulder seams. Most often they were made of some black material combined with white, curled lamb or ermine, either in the form of shawl collars, front facings or full-length vests. Many of the coats formed ensembles with jacket suits, as did a coat of black broadcloth with lining and turn-back and fronts of ermine, but a collar of Hudson seal. It was worn over a black satin jacket suit.

The new fabrics for coats and wraps, for sports and for dress, are a thing of comfort, luxury and style. In a large assortment of soft, firmly woven material of downy surface stands out one labeled Palm Buranique. It is of sage green, with a border for the bottom of conventionalized palm leaves in lighter shade and a striped selvage of rose-green and gold. There are many other coatings in this character: Kashavelline in plain tan, brown, gray, cinnamon, pink and white; Buravelle monchatte, a spotted surface in mixtures of brown, blue, saffron and rose, and "Raillaine ombre," an all-wool woven in perpendicular stripes, with stripes of violet, yellow, green and all the latest colors, worn across.

Hairpins Are in Favor as Long Hair Returns

With the return of long tresses, hairpins are coming back, too.

Novelty pins, in the form of large pearls, Spanish ornaments, and tortoiseshell combs are not only being shown, but sold. Because back hair is still lacking in quantity, if not actually pinned on, the ornamental pins have to be extremely light in weight.

Wigs are one way of keeping the hair ornaments in place. Many women find them more satisfactory than artificial back hair, which is not easily attached, and forms a precarious basis for valuable ornaments.

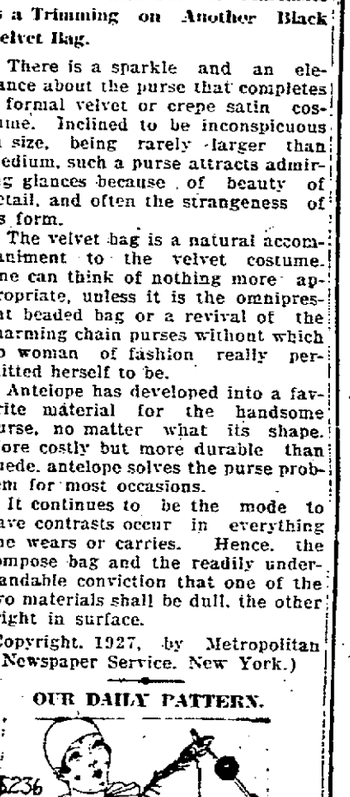
VELVET AND MOIRE HANDBAGS REAPPEAR TO STEM THE TIDE OF LEATHER.

New York.—Just as we have become accustomed to the idea that leather and not silk should be the media for "smart handbags" and purses, the shops where fashion is made a fetish open to show moires and velvets again. What is more, some of the moires have harked back to the effective but familiar decoration of flowers embroidered, which not so long ago was laid to rest.



THE VELVET PURSE IN TWO NEW DESIGNS.

Above:

A Handbag of Black Velvet is Distinctive with a Silver Catch in a Grape Design.

Below:

A Small Watch Set in Marcasite Is a Trimming on Another Black Velvet Bag.

There is a sparkle and an elegance about the purse that completes a formal velvet or crepe satin costume. Inclined to be inconspicuous in size, being rarely larger than medium, such a purse attracts admiring glances because of beauty of detail, and often the strangeness of its form.

The velvet bag is a natural accompaniment to the velvet costume. One can think of nothing more appropriate, unless it is the omnipresent beaded bag or a revival of the charming chain purses without which no woman of fashion really permitted herself to be.

Antelope has developed into a favorite material for the handsome purse, no matter what its shape. More costly but more durable than suede, antelope solves the purse problem for most occasions.

It continues to be the mode to have contrasts occur in everything one wears or carries. Hence, the compose bag and the readily understandable conviction that one of the two materials shall be dull, the other bright in surface.

Mocking mirrors

MOCKING shapes of silvered glass that tell the truth. . . . What a tragedy that some women fade so soon! Just a few short years ago, beauty and health were theirs to spare. Now — their mirrors mock them! Wan, thin cheeks, haggard smiles, betray the price of neglect!

It is terrible—the toll that constipation takes in health and happiness. It thieves beauty. It wrecks vitality. It is the cause of much suffering and disease. And all the while it could be so easily relieved! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—safely, permanently.

Why ALL-BRAN is superior to "part-bran"

A large part of ALL-BRAN is "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it throughout the intestines, gently distending them—purifying, eliminating poisonous wastes. In a part-bran product the quantity of bulk is often too small to do this work. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN—because it is 100% bran—100% effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

No more need for pills

How different from habit-forming pills and drugs! Which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Let it soak for a few moments to bring out all its delicious flavor. Try it in soups. With other cereals.

But be sure to get genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants. On diners. Made by the Kellogg Company in Battle Creek, Mich. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

Salvation Army Drive Progress

Canvassers Meeting With Success in Campaign to Raise $4,500 to Carry on Army's Work in Kingston.

The sum of $4,500 sought by the Salvation Army for the financing of work in Kingston will undoubtedly be collected within a few days as Kingstonians are responding readily to the appeal of the worthy organization for their Home Service Fund. Captain Kliphouse, who came to Kingston on September 1, is much enthused over the rapid raising of the funds and is anxious to see the campaign close in the near future so that he may formulate his plans for the year and start work immediately.

The business men of the city are helping the Army with the Home Service drive and are registering success from all angles. They are collecting subscriptions with 100 per cent efficiency and their efforts will do much toward the raising of the sum asked for—$4,500. Captains of the business men's teams are Charles A. Lasher, Arthur J. Burns, Max L. Reben, Judge Joseph M. Fowler and Clarence S. Rowland.

Captain Kliphouse is heading the Salvation Army canvassers. This corps of collectors are meeting with great success. Cheerful response to the call for funds is being augmented by courteous reception which tends to encourage the solicitors. The various wards of the city are divided into divisions and workers systematically canvass each portion. The factories of Kingston are another source from which funds are being obtained. Cheerfulness also marks the donating of the industrial workers for the promotion of the Salvationists' cause.

All concerned with the drive are optimistic concerning its success and it is forecast that when the Home Service appeal has ended it will be the pleasure of Captain Kliphouse to know that the citizens of Kingston will have gone over the top with their contributions.

STOMACH TROUBLES THAT ARE DANGEROUS
(CUT THIS OUT)

Some forms of stomach trouble, if neglected, often lead to dangerous conditions—ulcers or cancers—then, a surgical operation is about the only hope.

For this reason, even the most simple stomach ailments should be given prompt and careful attention. So, don't neglect acid stomach, sourness, gas or bloating! And don't waste time with unknown or unreliable treatments. At the very first signs of distress, go to any good drug store and obtain a few cents' worth of pure Bisurated Magnesia. This special Magnesia Compound is safe and pleasant to take—quickly, almost instantly, effective and does not act as a laxative. Be sure and ask for BISURATED Magnesia for stomach troubles only.

Girl Shows Broadway How to Make Art Pay

Young Star's Success Proves Women Know What Public Wants

BY SHIRLEY KIRKE

International Illustrated News Staff Correspo

Chalk up another triumph for the supposedly inferior sex over the boastful male!

For years the "wise" showmen of Broadway have claimed that art doesn't pay—that the public wants trash, sex and hokum—that the worth-while things of the theatre are box-office failures.

Eva Le Gallienne always thought Broadway was wrong. The daughter of the noted poet, Richard Le Gallienne, she has gravitated naturally toward the better things in the world of art. When she took up a stage career, she identified herself only with first-class productions.

Emerging rapidly as a star, and with the promise of many profitable engagements ahead of her as her services always were in demand, Miss Le Gallienne eventually found herself able to realize her dreams.

She took possession of an old theatre, far from the white light belt, and installed her own company.

Last year, when she announced her repertoire of plays, the "wise" producers laughed up their sleeves and predicted quick failure.

"Too highbrow," they chuckled.

But they soon found out they were mistaken—just as mistaken as they were in the case of another woman who had faith, Anne Nichols.

The public wasn't slow in responding. And Broadway discovered there was a large patronage for plays of the better class. And that theatregoers didn't mind traveling far from the lobster belt to see these productions.

And now—naturally—Broadway thinks Eva Le Gallienne is a "smart" manager!

All the producers who were laughing at her last year, are now going around and saying that great old Broadway line: "I told you so!"

FAVORITE DISHES

Our Welsh friends are very fond of the following very tasty soup:

Buttermilk Soup.—Heat two quarts of buttermilk to the boiling point. Mix three tablespoonfuls of flour with three well beaten eggs; when smooth, add a little of the hot buttermilk and stir it gradually into the hot soup. Cook at simmering point until the flour is cooked, then let boil up once; add butter and serve with a bit of sugar.

Court Bouillon.—Take four quarts of water, one onion, one slice of carrot, two cloves, two tablespoonfuls of salt, one teaspoonful of pepper, one tablespoonful of vinegar, the juice of half a lemon and bouquet of herbs. Tie the onion, carrot and herbs in a piece of muslin and put into the water with the other ingredients. Cover and simmer for one hour. Now add any fish to be boiled, tied in a thin cheesecloth to keep it from breaking. This gives a fine flavor to boiled fish. Serve with any desired fish sauce such as:

Hot Sauce Tartare.—To one-half cupful of white sauce add one-third of a cupful of mayonnaise, one-half tablespoonful each of chopped capers, pickles, olives and parsley; add one-half shallot chopped and one-half teaspoonful of vinegar. Stir until the mixture is thoroughly heated but do not cook to the boiling point. Serve hot.

Hot Chicken Salad.—Mix one pint of cooked chicken cut into cubes, one cupful of peas cooked, one-half teaspoonful of onion juice, one pimento cut into small squares, one teaspoonful of lemon juice; blend well and set aside for an hour or two. Make a sauce of one-fourth cupful each of flour and butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a cupful each of chicken stock and cream. Add the seasoned ingredients and let stand over hot water until well heated through. Serve from a chafing dish or on hot buttered toast

Land of the Onion

It is said that when a ship is approaching the island of Ceylon delicious perfumes are wafted to the mariner's nostrils long before the shores come into sight, so luxuriant is the growth of flowers on the islands. Other travelers assert that a similar statement is true of the island of Bermuda; but in the modern instance the fragrance which meets the sailor's nostrils is not that of delicious flowers, but of the more humble, useful and nutritious onion.

The Bermuda farmer often raises lilies for the New York Easter market, but his mainstay is the onion. The Bermuda onion is the best in the world. Nothing so good is raised in the United States. Every year we import onions from Cuba and the other West Indies, and even from so distant a place as Egypt, but no onion takes the place of that of Bermuda.

Elephants Put Out Fire

How a herd of wild elephants extinguished a forest fire in Travancore, on the southwest coast of India, was related recently by laborers who witnessed the proceedings, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. A tree had fallen across the road and had been set afire to simplify the task of removing it. The blaze was slowly spreading to the woods near by when the leader of the elephant herd, apparently attracted by the odor of the smoke, appeared, trumpeted loudly to its companions and soon a band of dusky four-footed firemen were squirting streams of water on the blaze from their hose-like trunks. A stream near the road furnished the supply. The wondering natives, who had gone to a house a short distance away, watched the herd put out the fire and then drag the tree into the middle of the road.

Tibetan Wild Horse Figures in Scriptures

It is thought that the dziggetai, or Kiang horse, approaches as near to the primitive horse as any now found in a wild state. This is believed to be the animal so graphically described in the Book of Job.

The home of this creature, which formerly ranged farther west, is now the high plateaus of Chinese Turkestan between Lake Lob Nor and the mountainous region of Tibet. This plateau is covered with a growth of short grass on which the wild horse graze. The climate is very cold, the mercury in winter sinking to 40 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

The Kiang horse is a shaggy animal having bodily somewhat the aspect of a donkey except as to the tail and ears. It is, however, a genuine horse, having rather delicate legs and feet and ears by no means resembling those of a donkey or mule. The color of the head and of the upper part and sides of the body is a reddish tan shading to a bay and, though this color grows lighter from above downward, it contrasts strikingly with the pure white of the inner side of the forelegs.

Along the spine runs a well-defined stripe of thick blackish-brown hair extending to the root of the tail. The hair is long and shaggy and protects the horse against the cold in winter.

The dziggetai, like all the other wild horses, live in bands or herds of 100 to 200 individuals, each presided over by an old male. This leader gives the signal when any danger approaches. These animals are preyed upon frequently by wolves, but their most terrible enemy is the ounce or Turkestan panther.

Chinese Have Faith in Queer Medicines

A famous scientist has recently given an account of the rather scanty training of the average Chinese apothecary.

A Chinese chemist has little knowledge of many of the drugs which modern science has given us, and his principal medicines are derived from plants and animals.

Among his most favored remedies are fly maggots, fish worms, grasshoppers, dried silkworms, and beetles. The roots of the thistle, the lotus, and the ginseng and the saliva of toads are other favorite medicines.

The Chinese chemist of today is working on very much the same lines as the apothecary of the Seventeenth century. We wonder whether the Chinese are very much worse off with only these simple remedies!

Wives Purse Guardians

Statisticians say that in working and middle class families from 75 to 85 per cent of all money is spent by the wives.

Man thinks he supervises the buying because he makes out the checks for bills, but actually he knows little or nothing about those bills. He thinks his wife is no financier because she makes mistakes in adding a column of figures. He forgets that real financiers never trust themselves, but use adding machines. He forgets that the financiering comes in the planning of how the income is to be spent to achieve certain ends and avoid bankruptcy. That the majority of homes are solvent redounds to the credit of the women within them.—Helen C. Bennett in Liberty.

BIG SUM SPENT TO MAINTAIN HEALTH

$20,000,000 Cost of Protecting National Life.

Washington.—Uncle Sam pays the world's greatest insurance premium—$20,000,000 a year. In return he is insured against wholesale destruction of human life, crops and live stock.

That, virtually, is the view taken by Dr. A. F. Woods, director of scientific research, United States Department of Agriculture.

"Without the research scientist," Doctor Woods declared, "our present complex life would wipe out cities. Gradual depletion of soil and inroads of pests would mean starvation for millions. Through the work of the research man our lives are made easier, and what we have is made to last longer. He is the foundation of an intricate structure."

Research achievements in this country, recorded in the history of little more than half a century, cost the government about $20,000,000 a year. Closely affiliated experiment stations add a similar sum, bringing the total to approximately $20,000,000 annually.

Small Premium.

"This," Doctor Woods continues, "is an extremely small premium to pay for protection of an industry capitalized at approximately $70,000,000,000 with an annual gross income of $12,500,000,000. Careful analysis of results show that for every dollar expended for research there is an annual yield of $300, or 30,000 per cent. In the bureau of dairy industry alone an annual expenditure of $500,000 for the improvement and protection of milk and its products saves the country $200,000,000 a year. Hundreds of other projects in as many different fields are saving billions of dollars annually.

Check Plant Pests.

"Serum and virus treatments have made it possible to prevent hog cholera; fruit quality and yield have been improved by means of bud selection; methods and poisons have been discovered for combating insects, particularly the boll weevil, which threatened the entire cotton crop. Discovery of the part played by the common barberry bush in the life of black stem rust made it possible to stop this enemy of the wheat crop.

"Danger of yellow fever and malaria was minimized when science found it to be transmitted by mosquitoes. Science found carbon tetrachloride with which nearly 2,000,000 human patients have been treated for hookworm."

"Fly Eat Fly," Slogan in Fight on Blow-Fly

London.—War has been declared on the blow-fly in New South Wales, Australia, and United Kingdom entomologists will attempt to exterminate the pests through the introduction of bluebottle flies, natural enemies of the blow-fly.

A cargo of 15,000 chrysalises of the English blue-bottle is to be shipped from Great Britain to Australia and the Falkland islands within the next few weeks.

The chrysalises will be shipped in wooden boxes, between layers of moss kept at a predetermined temperature so that nothing will hatch until the cargo has reached its destination. When the boxes are unpacked the flies will emerge which entomologists hope will exterminate the pests.

According to figures quoted by Dr. G. A. K. Marshall, entomological advisor to the colonial office here, the damage done in one year to sheep in New South Wales by the blow-fly totaled $10,000,000.

"Last year we sent out to New South Wales 6,400 chrysalises, to New Zealand 6,000 and to the Falkland Isles 2,000," Doctor Marshall said. "The results were successful."

Here's One Way to Rid Highway of Road Hogs

New York.—The New York American says that Count Carlo Dentice di Frasso, the husband of the daughter of Bertrand L. Taylor of New York, recently won a duel in Rome with Count Alexander Pantaleone after an ordinary motorists' altercation. The story was hushed up for some time because of the Italian government's opposition to the ideals of the "field of honor," the paper says:

The two noblemen were motoring in opposite directions on a narrow highway near Rome and when each declined to turn out for the other they stepped into the road where Count Pantaleone challenged Di Frasso to a duel, says the American. Pantaleone was wounded twice by his opponent's sword when they fought the next morning, the paper says, and the enmity of the men was increased the same night when the victor celebrated in a Roman cabaret.

Pays $4 Debt With $40 After Wait of 45 Years

Peekskill, N. Y.—A forty-five-year-old debt was settled here recently when David Nightingale, who left this city for California in 1882, returned to pay John Dyckman, a retired shoe dealer, for a pair of shoes he had bought two weeks before his departure. Nightingale insisted on paying $4, which was the price of the shoes, plus interest to date. The debt was settled, after much calculation, with the payment of $40.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Reception was stronger Thursday evening and noisier. The regular buzzer began at 5:20 and was continuous until it stopped some time about 9 o'clock. Added to it was a succession of rattles and snarls. In addition to the Big Four reception was good from KDKA, WCAM, WBAK, WCAU, WPCH, WIAD, WHAS, WBAL and CNRO. Western stations were very weak although Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati were heard.

The Radiatrons were best from KDKA and the Eskimo dogs barked loudest from WGY. Another good feature at WGY was the Carberondum Band, which is to be a regular Thursday evening feature. WCAM gave an Atwater Kent "audition."

Saturday Colonel Lindbergh will be the guest of Philadelphia in brilliant exercises which will be broadcast from WIP from 2:30 p. m. through the evening.

New York's best young singers, boys and girls who have survived gruelling local elimination contests in the centers of more than twenty districts, will stand before the microphone in Station WEAF at New York city, on Saturday evening, October 22, and vie for honors as state song champions in the state finals of the National Radio Audition of The Atwater Kent Foundation.

An agreement terminating all outstanding patent litigation has been reached by the A. H. Grebe Company of Richmond Hill, N. Y., and the Hazeltine Corporation of Jersey City, N. J., according to a joint announcement issued by officials of both companies. The agreement, which is said to be of great importance to the radio industry, includes the granting of a complete license to the Grebe Company under all the radio receiving patents owned by the Hazeltine Corporation and its subsidiary the Latour Corporation. These rights, together with those recently obtained from the Radio Corporation of America, and its associated companies, gives the A. H. Grebe Company complete protection under all of the important patents covering radio receiving apparatus.

Yale and Harvard In Like Positions

Bulldog Meets Army and Harvard Stacks up Against Dartmouth—Princeton Opposes Cornell at Ithaca.

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Yale and Harvard are confronted with somewhat like positions for their football struggles tomorrow in the east.

The bulldog moves against the Army in an effort to wipe away last season's 22 to 0 humiliation. The Blue Yale upset the dope by decisively whipping the Brown bear after going the under dog against Georgia.

Like the Elis, the Crimson lost an early season tussle to Purdue and then came back and avenged two years of set backs by vanquishing Holy Cross. Harvard starts up against Dartmouth and the Hanoverians seem to be given an edge over their New England relations.

The elements again raised havoc at New Haven forcing Coach Tad Jones to cancel scrimmage yesterday. Instead he put his charges through an inside drill. Jones was given some bad news in a report from physicians that Cox's strained side is more serious than first indicated. There was no assurance that he would be able to play tomorrow.

Caldwell and Hoben have been nursing injuries as well but will be certain of starting against the Army. Incidentally Hoben comes from the same city, Torrington, Conn., that gave the Blue the famous back "Ducky" Pond, a few years ago.

A drizzling rain and muddy field did not deter the cadets from practice. All players are in fine shape and go to the bowl with a record of no defeats this year.

Dartmouth had not lost a game this season although the Green has had virtually setups against Norwich, Hobart, Alleghany, and Temple. This will be the first real test for the Hawley array and Miles Lane, who at present is the leading scorer in the east.

The Harvard line may be shorn of the star left tackle, Clark, who was injured last week. Barrett was at the post yesterday. Doneghy replaced the chief passing threat, Guarnaccia, in the backfield, which was taken to indicate Guarnaccia would be held in reserve. Harvard defeated Dartmouth last year.

After 29 years Princeton opposes Cornell at Ithaca. Gil Dobie, the coach with the dour ways, pushed his men at a prolonged practice under arc lights last night, giving particular attention to a back field made up of Beck, Balderstone, Hockelman and Sinclair.

The outcome with the Tiger is awaited with intense interest as opposing makeups on the part of coaches are involved. Dobie is famed as a pessimist while Bill Roper is an extreme optimist.

Kingston Ready For Newburgh

Saturday afternoon at the Fair Grounds the K. H. S. Varsity will meet the Newburgh Academy Varsity at 2:30.

Incensed at a decision by Umpire Bob Countryman, Pitcher Karpp, of the Shreveport club, hurled his glove at the official, who was standing near second base. The throw was perfect, knocking off the ump's cap.

The Philadelphia National league ball club announced the purchase of Pitcher Russell Miller of the Syracuse International league team and Pitcher June F. Green of the Portsmouth (Va.) league team.

No Sinecure for Huggins

THEY didn't believe in Miller Huggins when he took charge of the Yankees in 1918. They didn't believe in him when, in 1921, he won a pennant with the New York team. His scalp was called for when the Giants beat him for the world's title. His prestige wasn't appreciably enhanced in the eyes of the Gotham fans when he sent the Yanks back to win the flag twice in the ensuing two years. Then, when Washington broke in and won in 1924 and 1925, they were ready to suspend the little manager from the Brooklyn bridge and cut the rope. But Colonel Ruppert knew his man. He stood by him loyally.

In 1926, the Yankees came back for another pennant and this year they have made history with the most crushing triumph in the history of either of the major leagues.

Ruppert and Huggins.

Five pennants in seven years! Other managers have won more pennants, but in modern baseball history have they annexed that number of championships in such a space of time. Shades of Cap Anson and Ned Hanlon!

So, perhaps the fans of New York will yet come to recognize Miller Huggins as a great manager. A powerful team of sluggers has tended to dim the glory of victory for him. But, who was it who put this team together? Lastly superintending a team of stars is not a sinecure.

The photograph shows Colonel Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees as he appeared with Miller Huggins, manager, at the Yankee stadium before the start of the world series.

WHOLESALE EXODUS OF BASEBALL'S BIGGEST STARS MARKS 1927

Herbert Pennock of the Yankees and Grover Alexander of the Cards (upper left) are about the only ones left of the Old Guard of diamond brilliants. Eddie Collins (upper center) is slated to go from the Athletics. Tris Speaker (upper right center) has been released by Washington. Joe Harris (right) has quit Pittsburgh. Ty Cobb (lower left) is through with the game forever. Walter Johnson (beside Cobb) has twirled his last game for the Senators. Dave Bancroft (lower center) has signed with Brooklyn and will be one of the oldest players in the National League next season.

(International Newsreel)

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—Old Pop Time, greatest slugger of 'em all, is batting for nearly 1.000 this season.

He has piled up his heaviest casualty list in the history of the major leagues. His victims include:

Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins, Tris Speaker, Walter Johnson, Zack Wheat and Joe Harris. All of them have played their last game in big-time company.

There aren't many veterans left in the National Nuisance now. When next year rolls around, Herb Pennock, the Yankee's slick southpaw, will be one of the oldest, if not the oldest star of the American League. Of course, there's Bob Shawkey, too, but Bob isn't twirling regularly these days.

In the National League ol' Grover Cleveland Alexander apparently is destined to go on forever. Grover will just about hog the limelight in 1928, especially in view of the fact that his companion veteran, Walter Johnson, has quit Washington and is going to operate the Newark club in the International League.

Of course, Beauty Bancroft doesn't date back to the Johnson-Alexander days, but when you come to look at it, he's rather aged from a baseball point of view. And his longevity is all the more remarkable when you stop to consider that he's an infielder—and generally infielders are short-lived.

The game's going to lose a lot its dash and color with the passing these nationally known figures. Ba ball can't very well stand the loss one fell swoop, of such men as Co Speaker, Collins, Wheat, Johnson Harris.

Who's going to replace them?

That's what the magnates, as w as the fans, would like to know.

They don't seem to grow Cobbs Johnsons these days!

Wind Dies Out and Golf Title Lost to Duncan

A real heart-breaker in the way of tough luck golf shots was that of George Duncan in playing to the final green in the 1922 British open at Sandwich.

Walter Hagen had finished with 300. Duncan could tie if he could ring up a 6S.

George made a stupendous effort. He went out in 34, and, with the last nine holes very hard, there being but one short one in the lot, he arrived at the sixteenth needing 2, 4, 4. He got his 2 and first 4, and drove perfectly to the left in the last effort of that heroic battle.

The wind was left to right as George prepared to play his second. "Just his shot," everyone said.

Duncan trusted the wind to bring his ball around to the green. His shot appeared perfect, but the wind played traitor. His ball didn't come around. It went into a shallow hollow at the left of the green 30 yards from the hole.

At the edge of the green, squatted in front of the encircling gallery, Hagen said to a friend:

"That's strange; I played my second to that exact spot on my last round, and I took a five. Are you sure he needs a four to tie me?"

"Yes."

It was a tense moment. Hagen stood up. Then he sat down again.

Duncan clipped. He was five yards short. He, too, took a five. Hagen was champion.

Princeton Hopeful

The Princeton football team hopes to achieve as much glory as its predecessor, which won from both Old Nassau's greatest rivals, Yale and Harvard, although only three men of last year's team are in this year's squad. The photo shows Capt. Charlie Moeser of the 1927 team.

Tad Jones Again Yale Head Football Coach

Tad Jones will again be at the head of the Yale eleven this fall, according to the announcement made by the board of control of the Yale Athletic association. Myron E. Feller, Charles A. Commerford and Maj. V. E. Prichard of the Yale R. O. T. C. will again be his assistants.

Ted Blair will not be on the staff, while M. A. Stevens will be shifted to the second varsity squad, where he will work with W. M. Lovejoy and Philip Bunnell.

The hockey committee will again be headed by E. S. Bronson. The other members of the committee, as announced, are George T. Adee, Sanford Stoddard, J. E. Bierworth and J. O. Bulkley.

Lost 42 Games

Jack Coleman still holds the record for the number of defeats sustained by a pitcher in a single season. When Coleman pitched for Philadelphia in 1883, the first season that city was in the National league, he lost 42 ball games. It was not altogether the fault of Coleman's pitching, because his support was far from the best. The Philadelphia club finished the season with a percentage of .174.

Good in Introspection

This world would be a paradise if every man were as good as he expects his neighbor to be. The trouble is we see the faults of others quicker than we see our own. Introspection is more profitable than inspection.—Grit.

Expect Crowd at Sunday Game

The Yellow Jackets will hold another "stiff" practice this evening in preparation for their meeting with the Beacon eleven Sunday at the Fair Grounds. The game will start at 3 p. m. and will undoubtedly be one of the best staged here as the Beaconites have been working strenuously to establish themselves after two defeats last year by the Yellow Jackets. Word has been received here that they have improved greatly in their playing.

Manager Dwyer and his capable assistants have been preparing for the biggest assemblage of fans yet to visit the Fair Grounds. If weather conditions are favorable the local management expects to cater to over 1,000 spectators. It is expected that the fans will remember to hold their places on the sidelines and not swarm onto the field. The trespassing of spectators on the gridiron during the game means a penalty to the local team.

PAULINO UNABLE TO FIGHT ON NOVEMBER 4

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Because of an attack of lumbago, Paulino, the Basque woodchopper, will be unable to engage with Phil Scott, English heavyweight, in a bout at Madison Square Garden on November 4. At the request of the State Athletic Commission Dr. Joseph M. Bier examined Paulino at Summit, N. J., and found the boxer's injuries as reported by his managers.

Hilario Martinez, Spanish welterweight, will trade punches with Andy di Vodi, Brooklyn battler, in a ten-round bout on November 4 as substitute for the Paulino-Scott feature bout.

DEMPSEY'S CONNECTION WITH FLYNN AT AN END

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—In a letter to Ed. Frayne, sporting editor of the New York American, printed today, Jack Dempsey indicates that his connections with Leo P. Flynn, who directed him through the fights with Jack Sharkey and Gene Tunney, are at an end.

In regard to his connections with Flynn, Frayne quotes Dempsey as follows:

"Leo P. Flynn is all right. However, I only employed him for two fights. He's got a lot of business of his own to look after without handling me."

expression to the gratitude felt by all over the fine new church and rebuilt parish house, which could not so much be credited to the hard work and diligence in saving of the church's forebears as to their wisdom in choosing such a valuable site as the one on which the old church stood. Having the new and better church home, Mr. Horton thought that it was up to every man, woman and child in the church to make the most of the present position, so that within the next two or three years the church would command a larger, stronger, better power of service in the community.

Ovation for Mr. Watkins.

A real ovation was afforded the Rev. S. Halsted Watkins, who was in charge of St. John's Church last winter, during a critical period in the church's history and deeply endeared himself to the entire parish during the period of his ministrations. Mr. Watkins seemed to be about as happy to be at the gathering as were the men to have him, and like the previous speakers, offered congratulations both upon the new church and the new rector, who he assured had come into a parish of warm-hearted, loyal friends. Dr. Watkins was glad that Mr. Kemper was to be instituted rector at the Friday morning service, thereby fixing the more firmly the bonds between the rector and his parishioners.

Cheers for Bishop Manning.

The chief address of the evening was given by Bishop Manning, for whom three rousing cheers were given by the men, all standing.

It should be stated that the gathering was by no means a sadly serious affair, but there was a rare spirit of good-fellowship and that enlivening which comes from the humorous side of life, well told by every speaker, the Bishop included. In coming to St. John's at this time, Bishop Manning said he had but one regret, that he could not bring with him Bishop Shipman, but he did present to those before him the love of both Bishop Shipman and himself. Bishop Manning told all too briefly of his recent visit to the Old York Minster with its traditions of the Anglican Communion back of it and then of the World Conference on Faith and Orders held this past summer at Lausanne, which he considered marvelous in its spiritual import.

Coming down to the time and place where he stood, the Bishop foretold a broadening, widening influence emanating from the new St. John's with its old traditions and former memorials and its new memorials, particularly the pulpit given by the congregation as a memorial to the Rev. Edward M. H. Knapp. It might be stated here that another notable gift to the new church was that of the Caen stone lining of the new edifice from Thomas A. Horton, senior warden of the church.

Opportunities and Responsibilities.

Bishop Manning warned the men before him of their opportunities and responsibilities, however, and asked them to take particular thought of three things, the nation-wide campaign, which is the business life of the church; the necessity for each man to have his own part in the prayers, worship and sacraments of the church; and finally and emphatically to be very sure what the Church of Christ stands for today, in these times of doubt and unrest, when the world is trying to discredit Christ, His right to rule and is trying to break down all Christian standards of right and morality. Today the fight is on between the forces of Christianity and paganism and the man power of every Christian is called to the colors.

In closing Bishop Manning said that in the few years left to all present they would find happiness, satisfaction and inspiration in bearing a real personal witness to the Lord, Christ; believing in Him, following Him; helping others to believe in Him and follow and even in helping Christ Himself to be able to show His true power through their personal lives, in their communities, the homeland and the world.

Gratitude to Ladies.

The last speaker at the dinner was the Rev. Charles Bratton Dubell of Philadelphia, who being called upon to express for the men their gratitude to the ladies, did so very graciously, and then in a hushed silence told briefly and affectingly of the recent visitation of the American Legion to France, making intensely real to all present, the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God, the world over and in time past, present and to come.

After singing one verse of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," the benediction was pronounced by Bishop Manning and the event passed into the history of St. John's Church.

Pond Recalls Many Memories of Thoreau

For some two years and three months Thoreau lived beside Walden pond, and "Walden" is probably the best known and most characteristic of his works. At the time the era of snobbery in nomenclature began in Massachusetts and turned so many good old ponds into "lakes." Walden pond was duly made "Lake" Walden. It is about a mile south of Concord and must look as Thoreau used to see it the New York Times tells us.

The scenery of Walden is on a humble scale, and, although very beautiful, does not approach to grandeur nor can it much concern one who has not long frequented it or lived by its shore; yet this pond is so remarkable for its depth and purity as to merit a particular description. It is a clear and deep green well, half a mile long and a mile and three-quarters in circumference, and contains about 61½ acres; a perennial spring in the midst of pine and oak woods, without any visible inlet or outlet except by the clouds and evaporation. The surrounding hills rise abruptly from the water to the height of 40 to 80 feet, though on the southeast and east they attain to about 150 feet respectively within a quarter and a third of a mile. They are exclusively woodland.

Bees Proved to Have Keen Sense of Color

Flowers attract insects by both color and odor, while form, and such markings as stripes or dots, also help to guide the visitors, in the opinion of investigators for the Carnegie Institute, who have conducted a series of tests at the Pike's Peak laboratory for nine years. They discovered that blue is the most popular color among bees and other insects, red the least. Even when blue flowers were turned upside down, the bees eagerly sought them. Many bumble bees were baffled by the new position and found difficulty in mastering the problem of sipping nectar from the inverted blossoms. Bees showed evidence of the best memory, recalling places, odors, shapes and colors and knowing the time of day when the nectar flows. They never touched orange lotus blossoms, seeming to realize that the nectar stopped flowing after the flower had changed from yellow to orange. Fragrance attracted insects of various kinds from a distance, but color only within a radius of about thirty feet.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Guide for Best Time to Harvest Winter Apples

No one has yet devised a sure guide for the time to pick winter apples. Many rules have been formulated, but none of them adequate under all conditions, writes R. J. Barnett of the Kansas State Agricultural college. Apples picked too early will not develop their characteristic flavor and aroma and are likely to wilt in storage. If they are picked too late, their storage life is much shortened. About the best that most growers can do is to harvest winter apples when they have commenced to develop their characteristic flavor. That is the time when seeds have turned brown, when the defective fruits begin to drop from the trees, and when adequate color has developed. Some varieties, such as Grimes, are much more valuable if two pickings are made instead of one.

DAIRY

BUTTER MAKING DURING WINTER

A number of important changes in the production of dairy products during the period from 1917 to 1925 have been noted by T. R. Pirtle, dairy market specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture. One of these changes of importance to the milk producer is the increase in creamery-butter production of 79.2 per cent during the period. Only 17.8 per cent of the total milk production of the United States was used in the manufacture of creamery butter in 1917, whereas, the amount was increased to 25.54 per cent in 1925.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the seasonal trend of creamery-butter production has varied during the period. If the year is divided into two parts, namely the feeding season (November to April, inclusive), and the grass season (May to October, inclusive), it appears that the trend has been toward an increased production of butter during the winter feeding season. In 1917 the proportion of creamery butter made in the feeding season was 38.1 per cent and in the grass season 63.9 per cent. In 1925 the production in the feeding season had increased to 39.9 per cent of the total output, leaving 60.1 per cent for the grass season.

These figures indicate that winter dairying for butter production is increasing. There was a sound reason for this change, says Mr. Pirtle. In Minnesota, for example, the average price of a balanced ration sufficient to produce a pound of butter in 1917, was 24.96 cents, and in 1925, 21.6 cents. The average price of 92 score butter in New York in 1917 was 42.7 cents per pound. In 1925 it was 45.3 cents. The feed cost had decreased 13.5 per cent while the price of butter increased 6.1 per cent for these two years.

Young Bulls Need Feed for Proper Development

Young bulls need to be liberally fed from birth until matured if they are to give the best results. Bulls that are stunted will not reach proper development and therefore will not be a good advertisement for people to look at when selecting breeding stock. In addition the bull will not give good results if he is lacking in vigor that comes through proper development.

For the first six months the ration which is given to bulls need not differ from the ration fed heifers. From that time bulls will usually need a larger grain ration than females as they spend more time looking around and less time eating. Unless bulls get a fairly liberal grain ration in connection with good roughages they will probably become stunted.

The time to save feed used for bulls is when they are matured. If mature bulls are fed a heavy grain ration they will become heavy, sluggish and inactive. Mature bulls should never be allowed to become fat. Some bulls will require more grain than others, but as a rule the grain feed will need to be limited to get best results.

Dehorning Young Calves by Using Caustic Potash

A safe way to handle caustic potash when dehorning small calves by this method is to insert the pencil in a small rubber tube.

The usual method is to rub the very tip of the horn buttons with a stick of moistened caustic, continually wetting and rubbing until the spots are raw. This is done best when the calf is from three to ten days old.

A dime's worth of caustic potash is enough to dehorn ten or fifteen calves. It should not be so wet that the liquid runs as this will burn the skin of the calf. With the rubber tubing for the protection of the person's fingers there will be no burns.

Dairy Squibs

Continue to feed grain to milking cows when turned out to pasture.

Since water is the cheapest milk-producing feed we can find, can we not afford to give the cow plenty of it?

* * *

All dairy herd improvement due to better breeding tends to increase profits to the producer and to decrease costs to the consumer.

When you are feeding 20 pounds of alfalfa hay per day to a dairy cow she is getting as much digestible protein as if she were getting 18 pounds of bran.

No matter what pains are taken in clean milk production, there will always be some bacterial contamination.

Salt is essential to all farm animals. See that salt licks are provided in the pastures where the animals can have access to it every day.

* * *

To maintain a good milk flow during the fall months extra feeding of green feed or grain, or both, should begin now or as soon as pastures begin to get short.

DOOM IS SEEN OF BATTLESHIP

Big Craft to Give Way to Speedy Vessels.

Washington.—The battleship is likely to be scrapped or relegated to a subordinate position when the Washington disarmament conference reconvenes in 1931, or at the latest when the Washington treaties expire in 1936.

The new ten 10,000-ton cruisers President Coolidge wishes to have congress authorize next winter will be built with a new conception of the navy in mind which will call for greater surface speed and a wider use of the airplane than was possible when even the latest battleships were built.

The airplane carriers Lexington and Saratoga, which the United States has been building since 1922, have caused a complete revision of the ideas of capital ships of the future. The details of their ships are still secret, but the Navy department is greatly pleased with the vessels as engines of war. They have a displacement of 33,000 tons and a speed, it is said, greater than 32.50 knots an hour. Each will carry, it is said, as many as 100 airplanes.

The 10,000-ton cruisers also have a speed of 32 knots an hour and the 7,500-ton cruisers, of which we have ten afloat, have a speed of 33.50 knots an hour.

Into a fleet of which these fast ships with a minimum of 32 knots speed are an important part, the dreadnought battleship with a speed of 21 knots fits just about as well as the old monitors, which survived till after the Spanish war with their speed of eight or ten knots, fit into the more modern battleship fleets of fifteen or twenty years ago.

No fleet can move any faster than its slowest member, so the effect of the battleship would be to slow down the new powerful and speedy cruisers and airplane carriers. At least that is the way naval thought is now tending.

The ten new 10,000-ton cruisers which President Coolidge will ask congress to authorize, will bring the American cruiser strength up to about the minimum this country proposed at the Geneva conference.

Wrong Impressions.

Therefore, their authorization is not to be regarded as the beginning of a naval race with Great Britain or as impairing the prospect of cruiser limitation in negotiations that may follow the failure at Geneva.

With that authorization the total of cruisers built, building and authorized, will not be above the lowest point at which an agreement is possible between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, namely, 250,000 tons. The United States has now ten 7,000-ton cruisers, and eight 10,000-ton cruisers in process of building, a total of 155,000 tons. Ten more 10,000-ton ships would bring the total up to 255,000 tons.

Disguised Compliment

A pond man in New York added to his activities the pose of "gentleman farmer" on Long Island. Before leaving his place for a trip to Europe, he said to his head man:

"Flaherty, I have to be away for a month or two. I hope everything will run smoothly on the farm."

"Oh," said Flaherty, heartily, "ye don't do a bit o' harm, sir, when you're here!"

The Sandman Story

by Martha Martin

ABOUT HALLOWEEN

THERE! Another little girl named Janet who had wondered what the word Halloween meant.

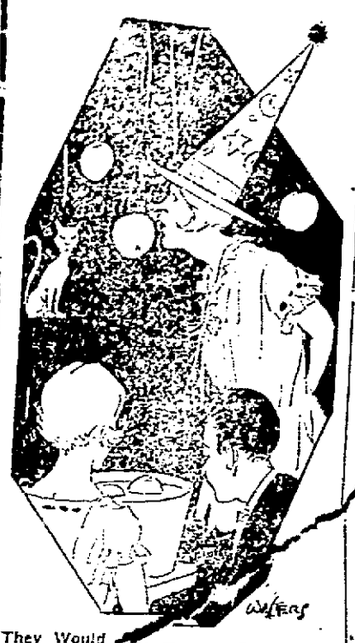
And now it seemed as though another little girl out too knew what it meant and was feeling quite sad about it.

It seems to me, too, that it is a word that we've used so often that many of us now don't quite sure what it does exactly mean.

And so I am going to tell the story of Miriam and of what her mother told her just so every one will be sure to know without having to do anything about looking it up.

There was going to be a splendid party at Miriam's house. There were all sorts of preparations for it.

Miriam did not know whether they would all be ready on time, for there seemed to be so much yet to be finished.



They Would All Try to Bite These Apples.

But probably the guests who were coming to the party were just as busy, for the guests would bring some Halloween stunts with them and would doubtless be dressed up.

Of course, Miriam did not know just what the guests would do, but she knew that two of her brothers were going to dress up as old witches and do all sorts of tricks.

Already they were hanging apples attached firmly by strings from a doorway and as soon as the guests came and the tricks began they would all try to bite these apples, which would swing annoyingly away from them!

And there was going to be a dish of flour in the kitchen after supper and the children were all going to try to find a twenty-five-cent piece hidden there.

They were going to hunt for it with their teeth! And there were apples bobbing in a great tub of water.

And these had to be caught by the teeth, too. Some of these held pennies.

There would be fortune telling, too, and Miriam's mother had promised to be the fortune-telling witch who would sit by her caldron which was now being made of red cheesecloth.

At the bottom of it, barely hidden, there would be a flashlight which would be kept going all the time, of course!

Oh, the party was going to be splendid. Miriam knew that.

And yet—and yet—she wished she knew why they had a party—not that she didn't want a party! But just why was it for this evening with the strange name.

"Why, Miriam," her mother said that afternoon late as she caught sight of Miriam's little worried face, "this isn't the time to look sad when we're having a party.

"What is the trouble, my darling?"

There was something in the understanding, sweet way that her mother asked her that made Miriam ask what she thought was so foolish a question.

"Mother, dear," she began, "what does Halloween mean?"

"October thirty-first," her mother said, "is the night of All Saints' day, or Halloween for hallow means a time devoted to holy purposes and een is short for evening. So that it means the evening before the religious day which is known as All Saints' day.

"But Halloween, while coming before a religious day, has always been an evening of festivity and frolic and fun for children.

"In all countries they celebrate it—it is a real children's evening—though in various countries the children have their own little ways of celebrating.

"Our way, though, is used by children of many countries and we have make-believe witches just as they have, for in the olden days in the old countries those who were superstitious or given to imagining things not so, thought witches came out on Halloween."

And somehow, Miriam never enjoyed a party so much, for it was so nice to know just what the day meant and to know, too, that in many countries children on this very evening were having a celebration of such a weirdly, wonderful kind!

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE FIRST BOOK—THE "BOOK OF THE DEAD"

THE products of the earliest scribes were known to have been made on slabs of brick or stone or planks of wood. These, however, do not fulfill the modern conception of books, in whose origin we find an interesting story, involving the history of the ancients and of literature.

The first known book, as we regard books today, is the Egyptian "Book of the Dead," a copy of which is in the British museum. The unique title names a collection of invocations to the deities, psalms, prayers and descriptions of experiences in the next world. Written on papyri, the texts were placed in the coffins, frequently under the armpits of the mummies. Several copies of this "Book of the Dead" exist, some consisting of only a few chapters, others over a hundred feet in length.

Following the evolution of the modern book through its long history from the papyrus book, which was mounted like a map on a wooden roller, through parchment literature, the products of medieval monks, block-printed books and finally the products of the printing press, there is no stage in its history that holds the wealth of color and the stimulus to intellectual wanderings that is found in the very first book, the "Book of the Dead."

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

RIGHT OF FRANCHISE

IT IS a matter of serious concern when votes at the polls on election day are cast by less than 55 per cent of those who have the right of the franchise. The success of our democratic form of government depends upon the interest manifested in the vote as well as upon those elected to bear the responsibility of public office.

When corruption in public offices is discovered we raise a strong voice of protest. When a public official goes wrong we demand an investigation and that the crime be punished. But, in the meantime the public conscience has not only suffered, but the community in which the crime has been committed must bear the ultimate result of the wrong done. Who is to blame? The one who does the wrong? Yes—but the first responsibility rests with those who put him into office, or did not do all in their power to keep him from getting into office. The lethargy of the public mind is appalling in this matter.

The privileges enjoyed by us are made possible through the enactment and enforcement of laws. Laws are made and enforced by those elected for that purpose. In any representative form of government, in the very nature of the case, the ultimate responsibility for the success of that government lies with the voter; and yet the American people are interested to the exient that only a little over 50 per cent go to the polls to vote.

What is the reason for this condition? If we were denied the privilege of the franchise, we would protest in no mistaken language. But, having all the privileges of this right as citizens, why is it not exercised as it should be? Perhaps the answer is that it is a matter of carelessness rather than indifference or ignorance. A government should be ruled by the majority, and yet in this greatest and most powerful nation in the world of free governments, the minority rules. Such a condition is a menace to all our institutions.

Carroll Goes Back to New York

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 21 (AP).—Earl Carroll turned to the lights of Broadway today to erase the shadows of a prison sentence.

At liberty on parole from the federal penitentiary after having served a third of his year and a day term for perjury, he goes back to New York to resume his work with the expressed intention of staging a comeback "if the world will meet me half way."

With his wife, his brother James, his sister, Mrs. Alice Schneider, and T. V. Rooney, his casting director, the theatrical producer had reserved compartments on a Southern Railway train which arrives in New York shortly after noon tomorrow.

To a happy re-union with his wife and friends, Carroll stepped gingerly, if eagerly, across the threshold of freedom last night, suffering from what he described as a fear complex in having to meet people again. It remained, however, for the lights of passing automobiles on his way from the penitentiary to a downtown hotel to furnish his first reaction to liberty.

U. S. IMPROVES ON WEAPONS FOR WAR

Important Advances Made Over Arms of 1917.

Washington.—New weapons far superior to those used by the American army during the World war have been developed by the ordnance branch of the War department. Predominant characteristics of the new weapons over the old are increased ranges, heavier projectiles and greater mobility.

While the United States has not progressed so far as European armies, especially England, in the mechanization of its fighting equipment, inquiry reveals unusually important advances in the development of new artillery weapons. Examination of the new weapons discloses that in case of another emergency, the American army will at least have weapons perfected which can be rushed into production with full confidence that they will function efficiently on the battle field.

Two outstanding examples in the artillery weapons are the 75-millimeter gun and the 75-millimeter pack howitzer. Other improved weapons include a new 155-millimeter or 6-inch field gun and the 75-millimeter pack split trail, an improved 37-millimeter infantry weapon, a new trench mortar, two new 3-inch anti-aircraft guns and a 14-inch howitzer.

Artillerymen are confident that the new 75-millimeter gun developed in this country since the war is destined to make the smaller caliber field gun a more efficient weapon. The American 75, while weighing slightly more than the famous French 75-millimeter field gun, used so widely during the war, has a much greater range and a wider field of fire. Where the old weapon had a maximum range of 9,200 yards, the new American rifle fires a 15-pound projectile a distance of 15,000. Its elevation, thanks to the use of a split trail, is 45 degrees, while the old weapon had an elevation of only 19 degrees.

The new American 75 will be horse-drawn and tests have shown it can be taken anywhere the old 75 could go. This gun has been adopted for army use. Companion pieces for this weapon are the new 75-millimeter pack howitzer and the recently developed 105-millimeter rifle.

The advantages of the new howitzer are that it boasts a range as great as the French 75 and is so light in weight that it can be easily transported through mountainous or hilly country.

Find Indians Raised 32 Leading Vegetables

Washington.—According to the Department of Agriculture, the American Indian was a successful vegetable farmer.

"In the American vegetable garden," the department points out, "eight principal food products had their origin in the Indian crops existing before the advent of the white man. These include beans, corn, peppers, pumpkins, squash, tomato, potato and sweet potato."

Vegetables of Old world origin are far more numerous. The department lists 24 of importance:

Cucumbers, eggplant, muskmelon, watermelon, okra, asparagus, beets, brussels sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, kale and collard, kohlrabi, leek, lettuce, onion, parsley, parsnip, peas, radish, salsify, spinach and turnip.

"But," it is asserted, "the value of the crop of the eight native vegetables is considerably greater than the 24 of foreign origin."

Old English Mission Ship to Be Broken Up

London.—"Gin and Bibles," as the sailors affectionately called the old sailing mission ship Harmony, is now in the graveyard of ships.

After a service of more than fifty years in the Arctic, the 200-ton vessel has been sold by the Moravian Missionary society, to be broken up.

The Harmony was the last of a succession of Harmony ships which sailed along the coasts of the Arctic carrying supplies, since 1771.

A year ago the Harmony left Dartmouth for her last voyage to the trading stations of Labrador. For the last time the Eskimos came out, shot off guns and made a carnival time of her arrival.

FARM POULTRY

VARIOUS ENEMIES OF YOUNG CHICKS

Young chickens have many enemies such as hawks, crows, owls, rats, foxes, skunks, weasels, cats, and dogs, all of which have about the same tendencies, for, once they start to harass a flock, they will not stop until the chickens are full-grown. The best way to cope with them generally is to prevent them from catching the chickens.

A fence around the poultry yard about four or five feet high with fine mesh at the bottom and with the bottom buried in the ground three or four inches will provide protection against many animals including dogs, foxes, and skunks. If rats or weasels bother the chickens, any refuse or tall grass where they might hide or breed should be removed, according to poultrymen at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca.

It has sometimes been found necessary to cover the chicken yard with two-inch mesh wire for protection from hawks and crows. At the Maine experiment station, however, and on many poultry farms, streamers tied a few feet apart on twine strung across the field or the chicken run prove successful and no overhead cover was needed.

Owls may kill chickens which roost in trees or exposed places, or they may even enter open windows of brooder houses. To avoid this danger, it is well to keep the chickens in the houses at night and, perhaps, screen the windows.

Little Money Is Spent in Aiding Poultrymen

A recent analysis by the United States Department of Agriculture shows that less money per $1,000 valuation of the commodity is spent by the government in aiding poultry and egg producers than of any other farm crop.

On the basis mentioned, poultry interests receive 14 cents, tobacco 42 cents, cotton 50 cents, pork and pork products 65 cents, Irish potatoes 79 cents, vegetables 84 cents, small fruits $1.08, orchard fruits $1.66, dairy cattle and products $1.80, citrus fruits $2.46, beef cattle and products $2.85, sheep and sheep products, $3.27, and bees and bee products $3.61.

Poultry and eggs, the fifth agricultural interest in the United States in value, affect more producers and dealers than any other industry and receive proportionately less federal agricultural appropriation. The appropriations made for poultry are divided among various bureaus. In the Department of Agriculture alone, nine different bureaus handle poultry funds.

Table Gives Relative Size of Turkey Breeds

The following table will give the relative sizes of the breeds of turkeys:

	Bronze	Holland	White Reds	Bourbon
	Pounds	Pounds	Pounds
Adult tom	36	28	30
Yearling tom	32	24	25
Young tom	25	20	20
Hen	20	18	18
Pullet	16	14	14

These are the standard weights and show the White Holland to be the lightest of the three breeds, but we find that there is a great tendency for the White Holland turkeys to run over the standard weight somewhat. Of the three breeds the White ones are considered to be the most domestic and will usually range closer to home than either of the other breeds. The Bourbon Reds would come between the other two breeds in regard to ranging habits.

Poultry Facts

Much disease can be kept out of the poultry flock by burying or burning the dead birds.

Burn or bury dead chickens. Every decaying carcass is an incubator breeding germs and disease.

One means of getting the pullets to lay in the winter is to give them plenty of water and proper food in the fall.

A combination of dried buttermilk and meat scraps is usually depended upon to furnish the animal protein portion of mash mixture.

Wheat bran is largely used in all chick mashes. It is bulky but fairly digestible and has a laxative tendency which is beneficial. It is fairly high in protein.

In New York the Pacific Coast extra white eggs sell for more than the New Jersey and nearby extra whites. A good reputation is worth money.

Birds that should be culled are sure to show a loss in the future and the sooner they are sold, the greater will be the returns, in proportion to costs.

* * *

It is better to keep a small flock of birds that pay their way than to keep a large flock in which there are a lot of drones that eat up the profit made by good birds.

Mayor Dempsey Grows in Favor

His Qualifications as Mayor Appealing More and More to Taxpayers of City The Dempsey for Mayor Club Hears.

That Mayor Edgar J. Dempsey and Alderman-at-large C. Ray Everett are gaining daily was the report made Thursday evening at the regular weekly meeting of The Dempsey for Mayor Club held at Red Men's Hall on Railroad avenue. The club meets again next Thursday evening when several prominent speakers will address the club on the issues of the fall campaign.

Reports were received Thursday evening from all sections of the city by men who have been in close touch with the situation and who have interviewed voters in every ward. The general impression gained in interviews all over the city was to the effect that the residents of Kingston did not want to pay a man a salary of $5,000 for ability to orate but that a man was wanted who was qualified to handle the city's business as it should be handled. It was also brought out by various members at the meeting that Mayor Dempsey since he had become mayor was always on the job; never kept any of the city departments waiting, was prompt in his attendance, and could be depended upon to look after the best interests of the city.

The meeting was presided over by Judge Shufeldt, chairman of the club, who called attention to the large registration and urged that an effort be made to have every voter in the city register today or Saturday. He also explained the use of the voting machine.

All wards in the city are represented in the membership of the club, and there has been considerable work done in placing before the voters of the city the qualifications not only of Mayor Dempsey and Alderman-at-large Everett but the entire Republican ticket.

No Appeal Possible From Birds' Judgment

Most people have seen large numbers of birds gathered together in a field or on a hill. But how many know they were probably holding a court-martial on one of their fellows?

These bird courts are held periodically, chiefly by crows, ravens, or sparrows. The prisoner is brought into the court and a general croaking ensues until judgment is delivered.

Should the unfortunate bird be found guilty, it is set on by the rest and pecked to death. Stealing sticks from another bird's nest is, apparently, a crime that does not call for such drastic punishment. Six or so of the other birds simply proceed to break up the offender's own nest!

Should an offender in the sparrows' court be guilty of a crime not serious enough to deserve the death penalty, its sentence is delivered by a few sparrows who rush at it and inflict the necessary punishment. It is then forgiven and received back into the fold.

ALBERTA'S FOSSILS

Slope in Alberta Where Erosion Has Exposed Ancient Skeletons.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

SINCE the days of our jungle forbears the quest of big game has appealed to man, his appreciation of the sport being measured chiefly by the size of the game and the difficulty of obtaining it.

Today we must go to Africa for the biggest game; but there was a time in the dim, distant past when America produced animals larger than any now living. That was so long ago that nothing remains of these creatures except their bones, and they are turned to stone.

The animals are dinosaurs; for the moment we will call them lizards—not the creeping, crawling kind, but huge reptiles that stalked upright through the jungles, rivaling in size the elephant the hippotamus and the rhinoceros.

The place is Alberta, Canada, and the time of their existence 3,000,000 years ago.

Between the Great Lakes and the Rocky mountains, just north of the Canadian boundary lies a vast area of level land, prairie in the east and forested near the mountains, with a narrow intervening section that is brush-covered. East of the timbered belt the central part of Alberta is level as far as the eye can see and dotted here and there by small glacial lakes, where nest countless numbers of ducks and geese.

Twenty-five years ago this level section was prairie land covered with a luxuriant growth of grass, on which grazed comparatively few cattle, with a ranch building here and there, but sparsely settled withal. Today the country is covered by a network of railroads, and near the railroads most of the available land is homesteaded.

A number of small rivers drain this area, uniting in the province of Alberta to form the Saskatchewan, which flows into Lake Winnipeg. The Red Deer river is one of these tributaries that rises in the mountains north of Banff. Numbers of lesser streams fed by mountain snows and prairie lakes join it, making an irresistible stream that has cut through the prairie land, forming a miniature grand canyon, a mile wide at the top and from two to five hundred feet deep.

Fossils of Four Periods.

Although black, fertile soil forms the surface of the country, the earth below is composed of horizontal layers of clay and sandstone, and a journey of 250 miles down the river reveals four distinct geologic periods in the canyon walls. The strata representing these periods overlap like shingles on a roof, and in each are preserved the fossil remains of animals and plants which enable us to picture former conditions and life during past ages.

Where these rocks flank the mountains they are tilted at an angle of several degrees, which shows that they were laid down before the complete elevation of the Rocky mountains. This formation is called the Pierre.

Near the close of the Pierre a part of the inland sea-floor was elevated above the ocean and became a landmass of low altitude—a vast stretch of jungle-covered delta and coastal swamp, interspersed with bayous and lagoons.

In the fresh and partly salt or brackish water lake and river beds of this period are preserved leaf impressions of a variety of trees, rare teeth and fragmentary bones of mammals, and numerous remains of a great variety of reptiles. This is known as the Judith (Belly) River formation.

Subsequently this area again sank below the sea for a long time and 400 feet of deposits accumulated.

Then a long period of elevation began, the rocks and fossils showing a gradual change from salt to brackish water conditions, which near the top became quite fresh. These beds, over 700 feet thick, are known as the Edmonton formation.

In these marshes of prehistoric times dwelt a host of reptiles, some large, some small, and of various forms, flesh-eaters and herb-eaters, but all sharing certain characters in common and known as dinosaurs. Not any were closely related to any living reptile, yet they had some characters common to the lizards, crocodiles and birds.

That great numbers of these creatures lived in the ancient marshes is evident from the numerous remains found in the rocks. In a single quarry, of which there are many on the Red Deer river, bones representing several hundred individuals have been washed out of the bank, and more or less complete skeletons and individual bones are scattered all through the strata.

Climate Was Sub-Tropical.

At that time southern Canada and the northern part of the United States enjoyed a climate similar to that of Florida, for tie fruits and palm leaves are often found in these same rocks. Numerous coal veins and petrified wood bespeak the tropical abundance of the vegetation.

Along the Red Deer river, in places the canyon walls are nearly perpendicular, and the river winds in its narrow valley two to five hundred feet below the prairie, touching one side, then crossing to the other, so that it is impossible to follow up or down its course any great distance, even on horseback.

For many years the American Museum of Natural History of New York city made a systematic collection of fossils along this river, sending an expedition there every summer, and each succeeding expedition returned with notable results. As the only feasible way to work these banks is from a boat, the parties proceeded to the town of Red Deer, where the Calgary-Edmonton railroad crosses the river.

There, with the aid of several carpenters, a flatboat, 12 by 30 feet, was constructed, similar to a Western ferryboat. This boat was capable of carrying ten tons with safety.

Supplied with a season's provisions, lumber for boxes, and plaster for encasing bones, the fossil cruises started down the canyon.

At intervals the party tied up the boat and went ashore to search the banks, that fossils might not be overlooked. No large fossils were found in rocks of the Paskapoo age, but as soon as the Edmonton rocks appeared in the banks large bones of dinosaurs became numerous, and in the picturesque exposures at the mouth of Big Valley they were especially abundant.

At the foot of a butte lie scattered fragments of bone, and on the rivulet-scarred hillside other fragments appear, as we trace them up the waterways. Finally, ten, twenty, or thirty feet above, other pieces protrude from the bank, and this is our lead. Cautiously the explorer follows in from the exposed surface, uncovering the bone with crooked awl and whisk-broom, careful not to disturb the bone itself; for, although stone, it is usually checked and fractured in many places by former disturbance of its bed or crystallizing of mineral salts, and is rarely strong enough to permit removal.

Every Fragment Gathered.

Other bones may appear in the course of this preliminary work, and, if the find is desirable, the next step is carefully to gather every fragment, large and small, that has weathered out and fallen down the hillside; for when restored in the laboratory one of these pieces may be the critical point in the determination of a species.

Then with pick and shovel the heavy ledges above are removed, and often a team and scraper and dynamite are used when a large excavation is to be made. As the bone layer is approached the work is more carefully done, with ever in mind the probable position of the bones of the skeleton. A false stroke of the pick in excavation may cause days of mending in the laboratory and might destroy some delicate bone.

When the bones are uncovered and brushed clean they are saturated with shellac till all small pieces adhere to each other; then the dirt is taken away from the sides, more shellac applied, and finally each bone stands on a little pedestal.

If the specimen is a skeleton it is next determined where the bones may be separated or broken to cause least damage, and each part is covered first with tissue paper, and then with two or three layers of plaster-of-paris bandages—strips of burlap dipped in plaster. When this is set and thoroughly hard, the block is undermined and turned over and bandages are applied to the lower surface to form a complete plaster jacket.

Free Commander Of City of Rome

Captain Diehl In Charge of Steamship which Crashed Into Submarine S-51, Resulting In Death to 33, Is Acquitted.

Boston, Oct. 21 (AP).—Two years after the steamship City of Rome sent the Submarine S-51 to the bottom off Block Island with a loss of 33 lives, Captain John H. Diehl, commander of the former stood acquitted today of charges in connection with that disaster.

In addition, he had the consolation of hearing Federal Judge Morton, before whom he had been on trial in United States court, declare entire concurrence in the verdict which it took a jury little more than three hours to reach.

The captain had been charged with negligence and with failure to stand by. In his charge, Judge Morton asserted that blame for the crash hinged largely on whether the submarine was showing running lights in conformity with statutory requirements. Experts testified it was not. Captain Diehl contended throughout that a glaring white light only three feet from the submersible's red light had masked the latter until it was too late to avert a collision.

Testimony was offered and later rebutted that one of the three survivors picked up had told the master that the submarine was in charge of "rookies" and that after the crash, when the City of Rome had circled the scene an hour and three quarters, the same seaman had declared there was "not a chance" of finding other survivors.

Foster Loses Auto Damage Suit

A verdict of no cause of action was returned Thursday afternoon in the action brought by Isaac Foster of Kingston against Joseph Scott of Rhinebeck for alleged damages to the Foster car as a result of an accident on the Rhinebeck-Rhinecliff road last November. Plaintiff claimed he was crowded off the road by the car of defendant and thereby crashed into the fence, damaging his car.

M. O. Auchmoody moved to set aside the verdict on the grounds that it was contrary to the facts and the evidence and on the usual grounds as set forth in the civil practice act. He augmented his motion by the remark that practically every action tried at this term has resulted in a verdict for defendant. Judge Hasbrouck took the motion under advisement.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 21 (AP).—Dr. Charles Herbert Levermore, 71, winner of the $100,000 Bok peace prize, dropped dead here yesterday while addressing a women's organization on plans to promote world peace. Physicians said death was caused by heart disease.

In 1912 Dr. Levermore began associating himself directly with peace work, although he continued at Adelphi College as profesor of history until 1914. He wrote numerous works on international relations, was secretary of the New York Peace Society and secretary of the World Court League and League of Nations Union.

The peace prize offer was made by Edward Bok, American writer and editor, in 1923, to any American who could advance "the best practical plan by which the United States may cooperate with other nations at attain and preserve world peace. Important "Little Things"—More Important Than Ever in the Quest of the Ensemble

Sheer Crepe and Metal Lace Combine in Formal Types

The distinctive combination of gold metal lace with black georgette qualifies in the tunic length model at the upper left, diversity is introduced in the raglan sleeves, which have insets of lace.

The blouse costume at the right offers the effective construction of and blouse worn with a circular skirt of sheer velvet, which is bound in satin.

An interpretation of the hip-length mode also utilizes gold lace, providing contrast by means of pointed neckline border and jabot of georgette. Both fabrics combine in the sleeves.

Among feather novelties is a version of the feather boa, in the upper left corner. At each end of a ribbon choker is attached a tail of ostrich feathers simulating the fox tails presented on the coats shown in some of the autumn collections in Paris.

The fan illustrated is of long ostrich feathers in nacre blue coloring. A draped line is given to the fan by an elongated fall of plumes at one side.

Old ivory combines with marbleized composition in the novelty hook-shaped handle for the umbrella at the upper right. Tips and ferrule match the composition in the handle.

Chinese Bamboo Provides the medium for the handle of the brown silk umbrella, shown in the frame at the lower part of the sketch. Tones of brown and tan in mottled treatment occur in this wood.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—The reactionary movement in stock prices, which has been under way most of the week, was halted today. Some irregularity took place at the opening as a result of liquidation inspired by inability or unwillingness to meet margin calls, but the market soon swung upward under the leadership of the oil shares, which have taken little part in the "bull" movement of the last few years.

Phillips Petroleum led the advance in the oil group by climbing nearly 3 points on unofficial assurance that dividends would be maintained. Other oil issues advanced 1 to 2 points.

Extreme gains in a number of high priced specialties such as Abitibi Power, American Machine and Foundry, American Tobaccos, Fidelity-Phenix Insurance and Rossia Insurance, ran from 4 to 10 points.

Pools were again active in a number of specialties. A sudden outburst of buying in the preferred stocks of the National Railways of Mexico sent the A up 2 points to $6 a share and the B up 1 to 3 points, both new highs. Underwood Typewriter advanced to a new high on the announcement that negotiations were pending for a merger with the Elliott Fisher Company. Christie Brown and Columbia Carbon also reached new peaks.

Rails also moved upward after an early period of sluggishness with Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson and Chesapeake and Ohio in the forefront of the advance.

Literature of China Preserved in Memory

Che Hwang-ti, emperor of China, 223-221 B. C., evidently was a man with opinions of his own plus an exaggerated reverence for "the good old times." He issued an edict that all books on the realm were to be burned excepting those treating of medicine, divination and husbandry. This included all the writings of Confucius. It was further ordered that anyone who mentioned the Book of History or the Book of Odes (the Chinese classics) should be put to death.

This is said to have been the most drastic and comprehensive suppression of a literature. While the destruction of books was enormous, a few copies of the most treasured volumes were preserved. According to one tradition, however, a large number of works were saved only through the marvelous memories of public reciters. Even today it is said that if the same literary tragedy should be enacted, thousands of Chinese could be found who could rewrite from memory not only the text, but commentaries of their nine classical works.

Dragon-Fly a Marvel of the Insect World

The dragon fly is not one of those beings who have eyes and see not. When this insect looks at you he sees you well—71,000 of you.

This most wonderful organ of vision, though no larger than a pin's head, has facets upon the lens of the eye and these facets have been counted as high as 17,000, each one more perfect than any side of a diamond fashioned by the hand of man.

The dragon-fly usually is found near water, probably the stream whence it first emerged, says London Tit-Bits. Its wings, which are of the most exquisite and transparent gauze, move with incredible rapidity. It is the swallow among insects, and so swift is its flight, and so keen its vision, that it will recognize, follow, and catch on the wing the tiniest prey.

It can fly backwards or forwards, and turn at a right angle at top speed. Like the swallow, too, its flight seems tireless, and it is seldom seen to alight.

X-Ray Proves Useful in Treating Horses

Washington.—The X-ray for horses is one of the latest advances in veterinary science that has given very satisfactory results at the Veterinary Station hospital at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, according to reports received here. The rays have been found most useful, it is stated, in making diagnoses of broken bones, ossifications and the presence of foreign bodies in the feet. As yet the curative effects of X-ray treatment have not been tried on horses.

Since it is not feasible to bring such large animals into the X-ray room, an X-ray machine has been fitted up on a chassis with eighteen-inch wheels which convey the apparatus directly to the patient's "bedside."

Show Smart Lines in Autumn Frocks

Season's Innovations in Fall Wear Make Latest Styles Most Flattering.

Of primary interest to the woman of fashion this fall is the changed silhouette, which, so long predicted and proposed, at last seems an accomplished fact. Whether it is a natural reaction against too severe and simple styles or whether the Parisian designers have found in the recent boyish modes not enough scope for the exercise of their talents it is hard to say. One thing is certain writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, elegance, oldtime elegance, has returned, and the first departure from recently accepted standards of rigid simplicity is in the matter of line. Skirts, in fact, are at last longer. Such couturiers as Poiret, Molyneux, Drecoll, Jane Regny, Cyber and others of like note have added actual length to the hemline. This additional length, however, is not more than one inch; but when knees have been so generally exposed to view, even an inch is something. Then there is the irregular hemline, which is possibly a more interesting development. The conventionally short skirt is retained but an appearance of length is produced by pointed sides, fluttering panels, low descending drapes, longer backs, and, in the case of evening gowns, actual trains. Molyneux shows these effects in addition to the added inch of actual length noted above. With him in the movement for the irregular hem are various great designers, such as Worth, Patou, Premet, Champcommunal, Miler Soeurs and some five or six others.

Dipped hemlines were really originated as early as last spring by Louiseboulanger, whose familiar model of molded bodice and skirt that was short in front and dropped gradually at the sides to full length in back, has been popular all summer. In the printed chiffon version which this house originated, the model is still appearing at the smartest resorts in Europe. Since it is in reality a semi-period frock with rather full skirt, it will undoubtedly continue its existence during the winter, being sponsored by the young girl and that type of slim matron who is at her best in a gown of period influence. This sort of gown has received more prominence than usual in the fall showings, Agnes, Redfern, Lenief, Bishop and others rather making a feature of it.

All frocks, even daytime ones, show added fullness in the skirt. The circular line is favored, generally at front and sometimes at the sides.

Draping Is Prominent.

An immense amount of draping appears. It is one of the most practical and effective features of the mode, for it has such infinite possibilities. It is the plump woman's kindest friend; since a mass of draping cleverly manipulated conceals bulging contours and gives long and slenderizing lines as no other fabric treatment can. It is strikingly graceful, too, and in the lustrous satins and new transparent velvets it effects a self-trim unsurpassed for elegance and beauty.

The tiered effect so much seen this summer with printed front continues in great variety. Patou makes it in circular fashion, Champcommunal in diagonal, Molyneux uses double tiers which suggest a tunic. In fact, the tunic silhouette itself is one of the newest notes for fall.

The bloused bodice above a snug hipline continues, as does the bolero. The latter is very versatile. It may end just below the shoulder blades or drop to any length from there to the hips. It is an excellent device for concealing defects of figure. Along with the tendency to lengthen the skirt at the hem, appears a similar tendency to length at the hip, this achieved naturally enough by raising the waistline. Back to normality has been the cry of the waistliners for some time, but, in spite of much propaganda, the mooted line remained fixed somewhere around the hips. Today the very low line remains, the hip-line also; but there is a movement on the part of some important houses to raise the waistline, if not to normal at least to nearly normal. Nicole Groult goes the whole way and shows models with waistlines where they were before women adopted the pencil line silhouette.

Necklines are softer and more becoming than they have been for some years. Lelong continues the collarless effect, but adds fabric bows as a trim. The soft turn-back collar, which give a flattering neckline for the older woman or for the very thin woman, is sponsored by Chanel. Even high collars appear on some models. Talbot uses them, as do Doucet and Drecoll. Many lace collars and neckbands finish dresses of black transparent velvet. Sometimes a navy dress has an inner yoke of flesh or salmon. One smart model of black crepe had a yoke and sleeves of white crepe. The same type of gown was also seen in black and salmon. When one takes into account the vast amount of costume jewelry sponsored it would seem as if, between collars and necklaces, neck lines were destined to be very feminine and flattering this winter. This is news that will mean little to the flapper or the debutante, but for the older woman it is priceless.

Jumper Still Popular.

In sports clothes the jumper continues to be the high note. It appears in jerseys and novelty woolens with especial emphasis on the Rodier weaves. The lines of metal thread woven into the dark fabric are very smart and distinctive. The main difference in styling the jumper this year is in the matter of length. The jumper has grown longer, not long enough to be awkward, just long enough to allow a becoming belt. Some houses are showing a three-quarter length jumper, Talbot and Regny among these, but it is not probable that the more becoming shorter length will be displaced in popular favor. Sweaters, of course, still hold their place in sports wear, the high-necked model shown by Regny and Drecoll introducing a new note.

The elegance movement has made itself felt nowhere more visibly than in the realm of fabrics. This promises to be a winter when velvet will predominate. It is shown in printed patterns for sports wear. It makes charming frocks, evening gowns, coats, evening wraps, handbags and hats. In fact, some houses show a distinct tendency to match or harmonize dress and hat materials, as, for instance, a lustrous soleil with broadcloth costume and with the velvet dress a hat of self fabric. Although various types of velvet are shown, the transparent variety is distinctly in first place.

Crepe Satin for Evening.

Crepe satin is also considered highly important for both daytime and evening wear. The present mode of applying bands of the dull side of the fabric to the lustrous inside as a trim, and vice versa, is undoubtedly effective. This really charming material seems likely to have a longer run for evening than for daytime, because its softness lends itself perfectly to draping and its luster and the beautiful shades in which it appears are too becoming for women to cast it aside quickly.

The compact is always with us but at least the designers are introducing changes on the old forms. Now, a most literary-looking case contains powder and rouge. The container takes the form of a small book bound in calf or morocco, in green, black or maroon. The design worked out on the leather is of gold in Spanish effect. This is a welcome relief from the everlasting round metal vanity.

Black satin is promised a tremendous vogue for fall and this means pearl jewelry, for the somber hue needs the luster of pearls to relieve it. Pearls are appearing in grape cluster designs of white or deep pink. They are worn as earring, hat ornaments, occasionally as bracelet charms and most often as a drop at the end of a silver or near-platinum chain.

Street, Walking Shoes Now Have Lower Heels

If you are wondering whether the heels on your new street shoes are high enough—remember that heels are getting lower. All new street and walking shoes are forsaking the ultra-high heel and taking on a more wearable, but still shapely heel which combines the qualities of grace and comfort.

A Parable

Does the possession of wealth make one selfish? We read the other day a quaint parable from the Jewish folk-play, "The Dybbuk": A rabbi led his visitor, a rich old man of miserly disposition, to the window and asked him what he saw. "I see men, women and little children," was the reply. The rabbi then led him to a mirror and again asked him what he saw. "Now I see myself." Then said the rabbi, "Behold—in the window there is glass and in the mirror there is glass. But the glass of the mirror is covered with a little silver, and no sooner is the silver added than you cease to see others and see only yourself."

Wants Alienation Case Tried Now

Counsel for Harry B. Elmendorf Asks Court to Restore His Suit Against Dr. Ross to Calendar as Missing Witness Is Now Here.

At the opening of Supreme court this morning Judge William L. Brinnier asked that the alienation of affections action brought by Harry B. Elmendorf against George W. Ross be restored to the calendar and placed on the calendar for trial. Several days ago a motion was made by Frank W. Brooks who has been substituted as attorney for defendant in place of Woolard & Cogan, to have the case put over the term on the grounds that a witness, Kathleen Dunham, was ill and unable to attend. She was at that time in the west.

Later Mr. Brinnier located her in San Francisco and on Thursday afternoon produced her in court. She was a witness for the defendant on the former trial. Defendant alleged on his motion that her presence was necessary for the trial.

This morning Mr. Brinnier insisted that the case go on the calendar since the missing witness had been located and was now in the east and was available to the defendant. He stated she had been in court Thursday afternoon and could testify. She is in ill health and cannot stand the climate and if the case was not tried at this time she would probably have to return west.

Her testimony taken on the former trial is expected to be augmented with additional testimony of importance.

The court suggested that her testimony be taken by deposition and the case tried at another term. This was objected to by counsel for the plaintiff because that the case had been moved over by defendant on the grounds that she could not be brought east now, and since she was now here and had been in court on Thursday, he asked that the case be placed on the day calendar and tried immediately.

Decision in the matter was reserved.

On the former trial a verdict for plaintiff was found and on appeal the case was returned for re-trial on the grounds of errors in rulings of the court. The case was tried before Judge Nichols.

Judge Hasbrouck's Order.

Judge Hasbrouck made an order that unless prior to adjournment of court today the defendant files a stipulation consenting to the taking of the testimony of Kathleen Dunham on October 28 at 10 o'clock before Arthur C. Connelly, that the case will go to trial Monday. If the stipulation is filed to take her testimony the case will go over to the December term of court.

Plow Deeply to Catch Winter Rains and Snow

The orchard is plowed deeply in the fall and left rough so as to catch the winter rains and snows. During the spring months it is kept cleanly cultivated, the ground being left as smooth as possible after each cultivation. This is usually done by attaching a float to the rear of the cultivator. During the latter part of June, just before the summer rains begin, it is again necessary to roughen the surface in order to conserve the rainfall. It is not well to plow the orchard at this season, so the desired result is had by deep disking. Cultivation should follow as often as necessary to kill all weeds and grass.

Nursery Fruit Stock

A. G. Ruggles, Minnesota state entomologist, warns against the purchase of nursery stock that has not been inspected and certified by duly qualified state officials. Information has been obtained that many uncertified plants were sold in recent months, particularly small fruit plants such as strawberries and raspberries. According to Mr. Ruggles many of these uninspected plants are diseased and unfit to plant and spread disease to other plants.

SAN JOSE SCALE DORMANT SPRAY

Sprays for controlling San Jose scale cannot be used on fruit trees in foliage, but must be used when they are leafless and dormant, according to W. R. Martin, horticulturist at the Kansas State Agricultural college. Before spraying, the trees should be properly pruned and the prunings burned immediately.

Mix liquid lime sulphur for the dormant spray at the rate of 6 gallons with 44 gallons of water, explains Mr. Martin. This spray can be used on all kinds of fruit trees. It assures good control of San Jose scale and of certain fungous diseases.

Effective summer sprays for apples and pears are lime sulphur and bordeaux mixture. The lime sulphur at the rate of 1½ gallons to 50 gallons of spray. More safely applied during cool, damp weather, this spray controls apple scab.

Bordeaux mixture is a solution of copper sulphate or blue vitriol and of freshly slaked or hydrated lime. On apples use 3 pounds of blue vitriol, 4 pounds of stone lime or 6 pounds of hydrated lime, and 50 gallons of water. Bordeaux mixture also can be purchased already prepared.

Unlike the lime sulphur spray, the bordeaux treatment may be safely applied in dry hot weather and controls apple blotch and other fungous diseases on apples, according to the horticulturist.

Martin recommends the use of arsenate of lead in every summer spray, but never in the dormant spray. Arsenate of lead to kill biting plant insects should be used at the rate of 1½ to 2 pounds to 50 gallons of water for apples, with a slightly weaker solution for cherries, peaches and plums.

How to Attain Success With Commercial Fruits

To attain greatest success in commercial fruit growing, the grower must produce fruit of the highest quality, referring particularly to flavor or agreeable taste. This means that attention must be given to the selection of site and soil, to the varieties to be grown, and finally, to the care of the orchard. "Quality fruit requires quality care" is an old but ever applicable expression. Quality care consists in creating a favorable environment for the tree by tillage, irrigation and fertilizing; in encouraging a well-balanced development of fruit-bearing surface by judicious pruning; in preventing overcrowding of the fruit by thinning; and, in controlling insect and plant-disease pests by spraying, dusting, or fumigation.

In the past, the ability to market fruit depended almost exclusively upon its attractive appearance, as witnessed by the ready sale of the highly colored Ben Davis apple 40 years ago. High color and attractiveness are no less a factor in fruit-selling at the present time, but the trade now demands that quality be combined with these other features.

Club Federation Executives Meet

Executive Committee Receives Reports of Municipal Clubs and Committees—Will Hold Card Party to Raise Funds.

The executive committee of the executive committee of the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs was held on Tuesday afternoon at the Kingston City Library, Mrs. Bevier N. Dubois, the president, presiding. There was a full attendance. The reports of the secretary, Mrs. C. N. Beckwith, and the treasurer, Miss Ruth Holmes, were accepted as read.

The corresponding secretary, Miss Frances Osterhoudt, read a communication from Mrs. Colvin stating that she was unable to appear before the Federation and the Y. W. C. A. at the Y. W. C. A. Hall on the evening of Friday, October 28, giving a talk on pertinent personal matters. There will be no fee charged for this lecture. Mrs. Colvin is a very unusually cosmopolitan well-informed speaker on political subjects and the public was cordially invited to attend.

For the most part the affiliated clubs reported their programs and subjects of study which have been published. The Monday Club made special mention of the eight lectures on "China", to be given by Dr. Lucy E. Textor of Vassar College on Monday afternoons, beginning October 24, for which associate members will be welcomed. The lectures will be held in the chapel of the First Reformed Church, beginning at 4 o'clock, promptly.

Sorosis also reported having had Mrs. Stuart of Troy, the Third District chairman, to address their club, greatly to its advantage. On Monday afternoon, October 24, at 2:30—not 3 o'clock as usual—Sorosis and the Twentieth Century Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Graham at which time Miss Lyon will address them. Sorosis will entertain the open meeting of the Federation on Saturday afternoon of this week at the Y. W. C. A. Hall. The meeting is called for 2:30 o'clock promptly and at 3 o'clock Sorosis will present to the women of Kingston, Dr. Lent, president of Elmira College, who will address them on a subject chosen by him as of particular interest to the women of Kingston. All Federation women are assured of a real treat.

Christmas Seal Seal Results.

Dr. Day, chairman of the public health committee, reported briefly of the excellent work accomplished as one of the results of the last Christmas Seal Sale, at Camp Happy Land during the summer, where many children were put on a firm basis of health which they probably could not have had without the camp. Dr. Day stated that the matter of the coming Christmas Seal Sale was already under way, the committee in charge expecting to send out the letters telling of past accomplishments and future hopes for tuberculosis work and enclosing this year's seals, by December 1.

Miss Healey, chairman of the membership committee, presented the name of Miss Jane Van Etten who was unanimously elected to membership in the Federation.

Mrs. Powley, chairman of the motion picture committee, had little to report at this meeting beyond the fact that Manager Texier of Reade's theatre was still hoping soon to present the historic picture "Old Ironsides."

Mrs. Reed of the good government committee asked all women present to be sure and register on Frday or Saturday of this week and to use their good offices to get their women friends and neighbors to register.

Arrangements were completed for the lecture to be given by Walter Wentworth Allerton of Boston at the Y. W. C. A. Hall on Tuesday, October 25. No tickets will be sold but a silver offering will be taken.

Delegates To State Federation.

Announcement was made of the coming State Federation Convention which will be held at Syracuse November 14, 15, 16 and 17. It was voted to pay the expenses of the president as the chief representative of the Federation at the convention. It was also voted to empower the president to name other delegates to the number permitted this Federation for the convention.

The Federation voted to remain a member of the Chamber of Commerce and the treasurer was instructed to pay the Federation dues of $25.

After some careful discussion the executive committee decided to give a card party on a compatively large scale in the near future, in order to raise necessary funds for the Federation treasury. The president was empowered to appoint a committee with power to find a proper place in which to hold such a party; to secure as nearly a clear date as possible and to make necessary arrangements and to attend to the publicity of such card party.

Adjournment followed.

Register today before 10 p. m.

Dairy League Meeting.

The regular sub-district meeting of the Ulster County Dairymen's League will be held in Grange Hall, New Paltz, on Monday evening Oct. 24. Miss Vera McCrea of the home department of the association will be present.

FAMOUS HAPPINESS BOYS AT ARMORY WEDNES DAY NIGHT

The Happiness Boys, Billy Jones and Ernest Hare, who will appear at the Spanish Ball of the Junior League at the armory Wednesday evening, October 26, are known to millions of radio fans as they broadcast every Friday night from Station WEAF.

Hare is a native of Norfolk, Va., and started his musical career singing in a Baltimore church. He then came to New York and appeared in ten Winter Garden shows and was engaged to make phonograph records at which time he met Billy Jones, who also started his career as a boy singing in a church choir. He later played in vaudeville and several musical comedies and made records for the Victor Company under the name of Victor Roberts.

The Happiness Boys as they are known have been working as a duet making phonograph records and personal appearances for the last eight years.

STILL GET THRILL AT PENNY ARCADES

New York Sticks to Ancient Amusement.

New York.—Eight o'clock in the morning is the zero hour for entertainment in New York. Nothing remains, apparently, but to crawl into a taxi and give the driver your home address.

That is, of course, if you do not belong to that class of New Yorkers who know all the little intimate things about their home town. For instance, that when it's eight o'clock in the morning, when you've dissipated the best part of your bank roll, when you still prefer any place to home, you can turn toward Sixth avenue and find the bacchanal spirit running riot to the strains of a mechanical piano in a penny arcade.

The early morning recreation problem has been solved by this thoughtful amusement resort that flings wide its doors at 7:30 and within half an hour has collected a swarming throng of customers.

The silken and the seamy citizenry of New York is there. Don't be surprised to see the former in tuxedos and spangles debark noisily from an open victoria at the curb.

Gold Mine to Arcade.

These rich once-in-a-whilers are a gold mine, for they "do" the works at an outlay of $1.50 each—the tariff on the entire 150 machines designed for the public's enjoyment. They may even give another dollar to be photographed before the canvas scenery of a bar painted with such sentiments as "Drink Here and Die at Home."

The average customer, however, is good for only about three cents, the change from a breakfast of cold slaw, an ice cream sandwich and orangeade at a cheap restaurant next door.

Tim, the florid faced manager, is probably the worst cynic on Sixth avenue. It beats his Irish understanding how crooked a guy can be in the matter of a cent.

"You'd never believe it, but there are people that will swear falsely they put in the money and the machinery wouldn't go," he deplores.

Tim asserts that his employers get gypped out of plenty of money a year this way. He's been changing nickels for pennies during two decades of service for the single corporation which monopolizes ownership of the few remaining peep palaces in New York.

Tim says that about 1,100 people come in every day. And at least 1,097 are out on the pretext of visiting the Sixth avenue employment agencies that cluster around the district at the rate of ten to a block. Although the arcade keeps open till midnight, business falls off perceptibly as soon as the job exchanges close.

The arcade offers a diversity of amusements. The athletic, the superstitious, the musically bent, the practical, and, of course, the seeker for thrills, have all been remembered.

Fortunes Told.

Visitors come first to fifteen or sixteen fortune telling devices. The Little Gypsy, for the small consideration of a copper, will answer briefly, "Can I trust my love?" "Am I a liar?" "Is there any hope for me?" or "Is my salary going to be raised?" She won't give you any particulars, except registering "Yes," "No" or "Maybe." But who would say that it isn't worth the price?

The mystic wheel also assures you that you can have a preview of your bridesroom. While the wheel actually comes across with his photograph, there's a futility in it at that. The man looks ready to leap on a bicycle built for two. If he is still alive somewhere he probably wants a wife who can run a wheel chair.

The surprising artistic allurement is the crank driven mutoscope or peep show that gives you two eyefuls for the same reasonable price asked in 1897. The shapely ladies have stood the strain remarkably well.

"The Death Chair at Sing Sing" has exhausted its melodramatic horrors and works no longer. The attraction called "What Girls do When They Are Alone" gives the educational information that they skip rope clad in flannel night dresses. Another well worn one is the caption, "For Men Only." Here you have a whimsical little piece about an artist who falls asleep while drawing a skeleton. In his dreams his model assumes the well rounded lines of a 1900 chorus girl, whom his modest subconscious mind discreetly covers with tights of a heavy woolen texture.

On your way out treat yourself to a penny squirt of perfume and stop to listen to Edison's first conception of a gramophone. If you've never heard "Valencia" or "The Prisoner's Song" stick rubber tubes in your ears and turn on the current.

France Finds Census Short by 23 Names

Paris.—By Presidential decree, the official population of France has been increased by twenty-three souls. Guide books, histories, almanacs and other informative volumes which give the population of France as 40,745,851 are in error. The figure should be 40,745,874.

When the last census was taken, the names of twenty-three inhabitants of the village of Honnecourt, near Cambrai, were first carefully jotted down, and then overlooked. The fact that they had not been included in the grand total was discovered only a short time ago, whereupon the President of the republic signed a decree correcting the error.

Leave Pictures

Spokane, Wash.—Ancient picture writings, attributed to early American Indians but unintelligible to redmen of today, decorate the rocky sides of a ledge on the Little Spokane river. They are done with red paint, in the likeness of the buffalo, lizard and toad.

Rubber Substitute Found in Soy Bean

Urbana, Ill.—From chop suey sprouts to a substitute for rubber is a long road for a bean to travel, but research work on the development of by-products of the soy bean exhibited at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, this fall showed not only those two possibilities, but a score of others.

Soy bean production, a comparatively new crop to Illinois, is one of the oldest in the world, farm experts here said. Its production dates back to 5,000 years ago in its home country of Manchuria, China.

The by-products developed from the bean in the last few years include chop suey sprouts and food sauces; rubber linoleum and lard substitutes; crude and refined oils and glycerine; enamels, paints, varnishes and printers' inks; soaps, artificial ivory and resin; candlestick and core binder material from which casts for producing metal parts are made.
